Preparations Made In Harrisburg For Start Of Extra Session Monday Night

APPOINTMENTS TO BE VERIFIED

Reading Of Governor Pinchot's Message Will Hold Forefront Of Session

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Nov. 7—Preparations for the opening of the extra session of the General Assembly on Monday night were completed today, and officials of House and Senate awaited arrival of the legislators, many of whom were expected to be in the city tomorrow.

Reading of Gov. Gifford Pinchot's message held the forefront in the order of business which will get under way at 9 o'clock. Recess appointments were to be given to the Senate for confirmation and reception of bills and their reference to committees also was scheduled for the opening meeting. Neither branch of the legislature must reorganize for the session.

Many Appointments

Governor Pinchot's proclamation definitely limits the introduction of bills to proposals covering unemployment relief as outlined in his summons. Members may, however, introduce measures they feel are related to the issue at hand, and many members of both branches have planned this procedure.

Among the appointments scheduled before the Senate for confirmation are those of Frederick P. Gruenberg and George Woodruff, both of Philadelphia, as Public Service Commissioners: John L. Hanna, Franklin, as secretary of property and supplies; Mrs. Alice I. Liveright, Philadelphia, as secretary of welfare; Miss Gertrude MacKinney, Butler, as state librarian, and Albert H. Stackpole, of Harrisburg, as vice chairman of the state aeronautics commission.

Many appointments to state boards and notary public assignments also were listed.

PA NEWC OBSERVES

Local hunters have been making some record kills during the week, many reporting having secured the limit of various game. The weather has been fairly good, although yesterday, with the heavy snow in the morning kept much of the game from running.

American Legion poppy girls were on the streets at an early hour this morning and few escaped their plea to buy for the Legion's relief fund.

Looks like King Winter has finally arrived although there will be planty of nice weather before winter season sets in in earnest.

Pa Newc is wondering why it wouldn't be a good idea to keep the Park avenue fire truck that is to be held in reserve, when the new engine arrives in a short time, in the Park Avenue station. The machine now in use could be kept in the same building, with a little tearing out of a rear partition. It is expected that the new engine will be delivered here in a few weeks.

High school girls are taking part in the annual Poppy Day sale on the streets of the city today, and hundreds of citizens are wearing poppies. The funds raised are used

Distribute Garments To Local Institutions

Packed in boxes and cartons, the garments contributed at the annual Ingathering of the Needlework Guild were sent out Friday to the various organizations that will distribute them. The total garments amounted to 4357, and while this shows no increase over 1930 in numbers, the quality and usefulness of the articles given was probably the highest grade in years.

Not one garment contributed is retained by the Guild. All of them are sent out to be given to those needing aid in the winter months. The Ingathering had practically no expense, there being a slight expense for the use of the ball room of the Castleton and not only was the ballroom used but Manager Toole turned over his porter staff to be used by the women during the two days. His co-operation is appreciated by the officers of the Guild.

The following list shows the distribution of the garments:

Davies May Be Head Of Finance Department In New Council Body

Reorganization at City Hall Is Coming As Result Of Election

Treser And Genkinger Will Probably Retain Present Posts

Some changes will be seen around city hall in January when the new mayor takes his seat and the two new councilmen assume their duties. Whether the changes will include shakeups in the personnel of appointed employes is not known.

The new mayor, Charles B. Mayne will have jurisdiction over the police department and one of the first things a new mayor usually does is name the man who will be the chief of police, and who the lieutenants and sergeants will be. The mayor elect has given no indication of whether or not he intends to make any changes.

Finance Head

One change that will be seen in the departmental heads is that of Superintendent of Finance. W. T. Burns, one of the two retiring councilmen has been head of that de-

Pinchot's Camp Plan Protested

Citizens Of Bentleyville And Charleroi Protest Erection Of "Work Camps"

REP. HEFFRAN ATTACKS PLAN

(International News Service)

CHARLEROI, Nov. 7.—Gov. Pinchot's proposal to establish work camps for unemployed, the first of which was being set up at Bentleyville, near here, today became the target of criticism from scores of persons in this district.

It was claimed by protestants here that scores of men, many of them heads of families, would be compelled to leave their homes and endure the rigors of winter camping to obtain the benefits of employment on road projects.

Protests Heard

Several residents claimed that the camp would draw a delegation of "down-and-outers" and homeless men to the Charleroi region while unemployed heads of families would remain in their homes without unemployment.

Representative James Heffran, secretary of the Charleroi Chamber of Commerce, dispatched a telegram of protest to Governor Pinchot.

"There are hundreds of men in the neighborhood of Bentleyville, begging for work. They can live in their own homes and do all the road work it would be possible to provide without leaving their homes," Representative Heffran informed the governor.

He termed the idea "absurd and ridiculous."

Objections were also made that establishment of the camp would offer all the rigors of the average outdoor camp without proper sanitation facilities.

In announcing the plan for establishment of the camps, the governor said they would be under direction of National Guard and State police officers who would look to the hygienic and sanitation methods in force.

Death Comes Unexpectedly As Wife Leaves Sick Room—Had Hopes For Recovery

(International News Service)

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Nov. 7—Arkansas today mourned the death of Thaddeus H. Caraway, the forceful United States Senator and Democrat statesman who suddenly passed away last night in a hospital here.

Death came unexpectedly last evening when the Senator was believed to be on the road to certain recovery following a kidney operation which he underwent October 29. He was 60 years old.

Physicians said the immediate cause of the statesman's death was the stoppage of arteries feeding the heart muscles.

Shortly before he died Senator Caraway was engaged in a happy conversation with his wife in the hospital room. Mrs. Caraway left

McKeesport High Squad Here Early

Visiting Team Reaches The Castleton During Early Morning

With fifty boys on his squad, Coach Sullivan of the McKeesport High school football team arrived in New Castle early today, prepared to do battle with the New Castle High team on Taggart field this afternoon.

While Coach Sullivan had little to say concerning the chances of his team he seemed to have a quiet confidence that they would do well. His confidence appears to be justified for thus far this season his boys have defeated Norwin and Uniontown, two strong high school squads. In view of the fact that New Castle has had rather an indifferent season, the odds would seem to be on McKeesport.

"You never can tell about a football game" said Sullivan, "especially a high school game. If your team is on, they will go in and win and if they're not, there isn't much you can do about it."

Before Sullivan went to McKeesport the team had been playing poor football. For several years they had been defeated regularly but since his taking the team losses have been few. In his college days he was a player on the University of Pennsylvania football team. One of his assistants is Clees, who seven or eight years ago was a star lineman on the Grove City college team.

Tariff Problem Spectre Before Democrats Now

Congressional Leaders Of Democratic Party Face Serious Issue

REVISING TARIFF PLANS DOUBTFUL

President's Veto Is Certain For Legislation Affecting Tariff Measures

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—Demands for revision of the Hawley-Smoot tariff law rose like a specter before Democratic congressional leaders today as deaths and special elections had virtually clinched their control of the House.

With many powers in the party assailing the tariff as one of the major causes of the depression, a growing sentiment for tariff revision has been expressed by the rank and file of house members.

The Democrats, however, are confronted with the practical questioning of whether they are justified in spending futile time with the tariff in order to write a platform plank for the 1932 election.

Since more than a score of House Democrats voted for the tariff bill and the Senate probably will be nominally Republican, it is questionable whether a sweeping revision could be enacted in congress. A veto by resident Hoover would be almost certain to greet such a bill.

Naval Court Of Inquiry Completes Probe Into Death Of Five Aboard Battleship

(International News Service)

SAN PEDRO, Cal., Nov. 7.—Findings of the U. S. Navy court of inquiry into the anti-aircraft gun explosion that resulted in the deaths of five men on board the U. S. S. Colorado, today were en route under seal to the Navy Department at Washington.

Four men were killed instantly and another died from his injuries.

Of the 22 sailors injured by bits of flying steel nine today remained in serious condition. The nine were on the hospital relief in Los Angeles Harbor here. Thirteen men received medical attention on the Colorado.

"It was an accident of material and not of personnel," said Capt. A. W. Johnson, commandant of the Colorado.

Premature explosion of a timing fuse on the anti-aircraft shell was believed responsible for the tragedy.

WILL ROGERS says:

(Special To The News)

NORTH UVALDE, Tex., Nov. 7.—Here I am in this beautiful little western town. Flew in here from the King ranch to visit a man who you are going to hear more of in the next few months than any man in America: that's just plain Jack Garner, who will almost surely be the next Speaker of the great House of Representatives. I never did go in much for this typical American stuff, but this fellow in his career and his home life will come pretty near living up to what we think one is. His only regret—and that is no bull either— in going back to Washington this time is how he and his wife will miss Nick Longworth. That alone almost keeps him from being typical anything. He raises Texas famous soft shell pecans—he gave me some and I just found out what a soft shell pecan is: it's one you can crack with just a small hammer. When I got here he was practicing with a gavel.

Gunmen Escape In Auto After Putting "Three On Spot" In Speakeasy

(International News Service)

DETROIT, Nov. 7.—Three liquor racketeers were shot and killed in a suburban speakeasy today by efficient gangland executioners.

It was the second triple gangland killing to be staged in Detroit within two months.

Trio Of Victims

The victims of today's massacre were Joe Rivetts, recently exonerated of the murder of Joe Evola, liquor baron; Charles Tear, owner of the speakeasy and John Pellitier, well known in the liquor business.

Rivetts, according to police, was "spotted" and Tear and Pellitier were shot down so the gunners, believed to have been imported from another city, would be sure of "getting their man."

On September 16, three men, members of a notorious Detroit gang were "put on the spot" in a fashionable Northside apartment. Three

Chicago Bombers Nabbed By Police

Two Men Surprised In Act Of Bombing Bakery—One Man Wounded By Bullet

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—Two men were captured today in the act of setting off a powerful dynamite bomb on the roof of a non-union bakery.

When they resisted capture police opened fire, wounding Joseph Siegel in the leg. The other prisoner was identified as Roy Rapp, 37.

Police, lying in wait at the bakery, succeeded in capturing the pair after they had placed a bomb on the roof consisting of six sticks of dynamite. Only a few feet from the explosive the family of Joseph Becker, owner of the bakery, was sleeping. Three bakers were at work in the shop below.

Capture of the men, police said, may lead to the solution of a score of recent bomb outrages. Authorities were convinced after questioning the pair that they had been hired, presumably by some syndicate, to place the explosive.

There's this to say about winter nights, a fellow can get some rest, he can sit at home in his stocking feet and think not of getting dressed. Let the wild winds blow, let it flurry snow, let the icicles form outside, the living room is the place to be, a place where a chap can hide, from the outside worries and winter sleet, but inside is always gay, in the living room corner there's comfort and ease, it's forty seven today.

Capital Police Again Do Battle With Starlings

Police Start Banging Away At Starlings Perched High Up On Parapets

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Nov. 7.—Although the danger apparently had passed, a detail of 12 grim faced state police, shotguns on shoulder today patrolled Capitol Hill to protect state buildings from a threatened invasion.

Employes at the Capitol were startled yesterday when the rattle of musketry reverbrated about the grounds. Rumors, flew, telephones buzzed, and those who were not firing questions were trying to answer them.

It developed that the Department of Property and Supplies had "declared war" on starlings. Roosts of the birds on parapets and ledges of the Capitol must be evacuated, according to the ultimatum, and when peaceable overtures failed the state police were called out.

The starlings have been a nuisance about the hill for a number of years. Various methods of driving them away failed. Finally, policemen with shotguns were assigned to strategic points. The birds reterated and department officials expressed the hope another such offensive would not be necessary.

of the four alleged executioneers were captured and are now on trial for the crime.

Gunmen Escape

Today's flare-up was believed to have been the direct result of a gun duel between Rivetts and Joe Evola, down-river liquor baron. Evola, police declared, had attempted to execute Rivetts but the latter beat the gang chieftain on the draw. Rivetts was exonerated in the killing.

The shootink took less than a minute and the gunmen made their escape in a waiting automobile.

Several suspects have been taken to police headquarters for questioning but None is believed to be directly involved in the massacre.

Despite the deadlock between China and Japan and the threats of further disturbances, possibly involving Russia, there was a tendency in League circles today to feel that satisfactory settlement of Sino-Japanese differences was still possible.

McKeesport high school football team is making its appearance at Taggart stadium this afternoon, after an absence of ten or a dozen years from the New Castle schedule. The visitors arrived with a no-defeat record for the season, promising an interesting afternoon for the New Castle lads on the local gridiron.

Next Wednesday is Armistice Day. New Castle ex-service men will divide their attention between the celebrations in Ellwood City and Sharon, the legion going to Ellwood and the V. F. W. to Sharon.

Have you noticed the unusually numberous loads of cabbages going through the city?

New Castle citizens may have an opportunity of seeing the dirigible "Akron" on Armistice Day, naval officials stating that if the weather is favorable, the big ship would fly over Pittsburgh on a trial flight on that date. New Castle citizens have missed seeing the big bag by only a matter of a few miles on two different occasions.

Only twenty-eight detours now exist in the entire state of Pennsylvania, according to the Detour Bulletin issued for the week ending November 12. It is probable that some of these will be eliminated when the season's work ends this month. The Bulletin is kept posted in the lobby of The News.

Recently Pa Newc remarked about seeing an automobile passing along on which there were fishing poles and wondered why anyone was fishing this time of the year. Clare Stockman, assistant chief of the fire department, remarked today that Pa Newc could have had the explanation if he had read the item issued from the Fish Commission under Harrisburg date line in the same issue he made his remark. And besides, Chief Stockman informs us that the biggest bass, pike, and all kinds of game fish are caught during October and November. We stand corrected.

partment since he has been in council which is for the past fourteen years. As councilmen came into office, none of them ever hankered for the jobs of keeping the money of the city straight, but in January either D. O. Davies or Albert A. Hoyland will be taking over the office occupied by Mr. Burns for so many years.

Mr. Davies will not be new to council as he served eight years, being defeated for re-election two years ago. He served as head of the Department of Parks and Public Grounds and also as head of the Department of Public Safety. However he is not unfamiliar with the workings of the Department of Finance as his eight years councilmanic experience brought him in touch with this department constantly.

Mr. Hoyland has never served in council since the commission form of government went into effect but he served six years as a member of the New Castle School Board, so that he is not a stranger to city governmental work. His experience in the business world has been that of a building contractor.

Public Health

Councilman Clayton H. Reeves who retires the first of the year has been in charge of the Department of Public Safety for the past two years, having the street department before that. This department has to do with the fire and health departments and inasmuch as Mr. Davies has had experience in this end of the work he may take it back again.

Louis G. Genkinger and W. Stanley Treser, holdover councilmen will not change their posts it is indicated. Mr. Genkinger has the Department of Parks and Public Property and in addition acts as Purchasing Agent for the city. He has no disposition to change his work.

Mr. Treser has the Street Department and while this department is one that makes heavy demands upon a councilman, Mr. Treser's experience as an engineer fits him for it and he also is not disposed to make any change.

There are many appointive offices which the new council will have the power to change if they so desire. Among them will be City Solicitor, City Clerk, Superintendent of Garbage, City Electrician, City Mechanic, Secretary to the Mayor and a number of others.

Indications are that there will be some changes made, but there is nothing to indicate that there will be anything but a few changes made.

ARKANSAS MOURNS DEATH OF SENATOR THADDEUS CARAWAY

the room for a few minues. The senator complained of acute pains and a nurse summoned Mrs. Caraway. She returned to find her husband had died.

Funeral plans were being made today by the family. Besides the widow, Senator Caraway is survived by three sons, Lt. Paul Caraway, U. S. A., stationed at Washington, D. C., Lieut. Forrest Caraway, U. S. A., stationed at Fort Washington, Md., and Robert Caraway, a student in Washington.

Colorful Figure

The senator during his long career in Washington had come to be known as one of the most colorful figures in Washington. He had served four terms in the House of Representatives and was serving his second term in the United States Senate.

His home was at Jonesboro, Ark. Had he lived two more days the senate vacancy could have been filled by the governor's appointment.

In a statement expressing sorrow at Senator Caraway's death Senator Joseph T. Robinson pointed out that the vacancy must be filled by an election.

Forceful Debater

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7—Leaving the political lineup of the senate basically unchanged, the death of Senator Theddeus H. Caraway, Arkansas Democrat, robbed his party of a forceful debater and the leader in a long fight to rid the halls of Congress of paid lobbyists.

Known for a caustic drollness of speech, the Arkansan was a valuable ally in Democratic tariff and agricultural fights. He had not a superior in the Senate in rough and tumble debate, and was reported and feared as an oratorical opponent.

Caraway's work as chairman of the now famous Senate lobby investigating committee, which first drew attention to the political activities of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., won national recognition, and was incomplete at the time of his death. He planned this fall to continue the work of his committee, going further into activities of lobbyists during the tariff revision work of the last congress.

The death of Caraway temporarily restored the Republican plurality in the senate lost when Senator Dwight Morrow of New Jersey died recently. Appointment of a Democrat from Arkansas is certain, however, so Caraway's death will have no permanent effect on the lineup. Today the party lineup in the senate was 47 Republicans, 46 Democrats, one Farmer-Laborite and two vacancies.

Senator Eleven Years

Caraway had been in the senate since 1920, coming from the House of Representatives where he had served seven years. His term would haxe expired in March, 1933.

He was born October 17, 1871 and came to the senate after a life begun as a farm hand. He went from the farm to railway tracks as a section worker, and was at various times a book agent, teacher and lawyer. Always, Caraway insisted he was a 'plain man."

A sharp, lashing tongue, was not the only oratorical attribute of Caraway. When he wished, he could move the senate as few other members. His descriptions of conditions in the drought sections of the South, where he said hundreds of families were destitute, brought tears to the eyes of listeners, time and again.

College Editor Breaks Record In Campus Dash

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Nov. 7—The brothers at the Phi Pi Phi house at Westminster College were razzing Douds on his job of editing the "Holcad," the weekly student newspaper. They were talking about it the other night and the outcome of the discussion was that some form of punishment should be administered. So "off with his pants" cried the brothers and Douds was soon left with only his underwear on. "Grab him" was the next cry and six or seven willing helpers heaved him up on their shoulders and started on a tour of the campus. The procession finally halted at one of the sorority houses where Douds was deposited on the front porch. Came a tug at the bell and everyone scooted. It is now whispered about the countryside that Douds is the new holder of the intercollegiate record for the hundred yards.

Driving China Into Soviet Arms.

In an exclusive interview with International News Service in Peiping, Governor Chang Hsueh-Liang of Manchuria charged the Manchurian conflict was driving China into the arms of Soviet Russia and might easily be the spark which will kindle a "world conflagration".

Reports from Peiping declared President Chiang Kai-Shek of China has concentrated 250,000 of his best troops in Honan province, either as a threat to Japan or to intimidate communist hordes who have been taking advantage of the Manchurian crisis to increase their sway in south China.

Meanwhile, the Japanese foreign office was advised reinforcements were being rushed from the Soviet border to aid China in the battlefield near Tsitsihar.

MUKDEN, Nov. 7.—Russian soldiers fought with the Chinese army which was defeated by the Japanese at the Nonni river, Japanese military headquarters here charged today.

Military dispatches from the Japanese advance base at Tahsing, north of the river and 20 miles south of Tsitsihar, said that bodies of Russians, attired in military uniforms, were found lying in the battlefield as the Japanese moved forward in pursuit of the retreating Heilungkiang army of General Ma Chan-Shan.

Previous charges have been made by Japanese authorities here that Ma Chan-Shan was under Soviet influence, and that he had been receiving arms and ammunition from Siberia, where a Russian army is massed opposite the Manchurian border city of Manchuli.

Japs Hold Station.

The Japanese today were holding Tahsing station on the Taonananganki railroad, having advanced by steady fighting since Wednesday.

The Chinese are retreating in a northeasterly direction, but the Japanese force has not yet moved forward to occupy Anganki.

The Chinese withdrawal, according to General Honjo's reports from the front, took place under repeated assaults, with Japanese reinforcements, which arrived from the south cooperating with the infantry which withstood the first attack on Wednesday.

At the Japanese headquarters here it was stated it had not been decided whether it would be necessary to move farther to the north into the Russian zone of influence in order to safeguard Japanese interests but the impression prevailed in military circles that this would be the next move.

In describing the present position north of the Nonni river, Japanese dispatches said all of the hills formerly occupied by Chinese infantry and artillery had now been occupied by the Japanese, and that the Japanese were prepared to withstand a new Chinese attack.

"KIDS" FROLIC FRIDAY EVENING

The lovliest group of "kids" gathered Friday evening in the City Building for a frolic and party and later it turned out these dainty little misses with starched pinafores and large hair bows were members of the Pythian Sisters, who were turning back time for an evening.

When the "children" had all assembled a brief business meeting was held after which the entertainment took the form of the last day at a country school and much merriment ensued as Myrtle Hildebrand took her place as the 'school marm" and what a time she had keeping the scholars in their places.

The spelling bee was the feature of the evening and then some judges looked the school over and Hannah Cochran was awarded the prize of the evening for being the best "little girl."

More hilarity was caused when Martha Horchler and her aides served a childish lunch to the group.

Plans were talked over for the turreen dinner, which will be held November 20 at 6:30 as the result of a recent contest in the organization. Mrs. Beatrice Horchler will be in charge of arrangements.

"Freckles" Likes New Castle

Young Hollywood Star Delighted At Sight Of Snowfall

"Freckles" Harry Spear, of Hal Roach's well known "Our Gang" comedies, who is making a personal appearance at the Capitol Theatre this week says he would like to stay in New Castle longer and get better acquainted. He says that his big trouble is that as soon as he begins to make friends in a town he has to move on.

Harry is a normal American youngster and took great delight in the season's first snowfall which occurred Friday morning. He likes it, he says, because in California he can not play in the snow unless he goes to the mountains.

"Freckles" has worked with the "Gang" for three years now. He appeared in the movies first when he was two and one-half years old. Some of his most recent talking productions have been "Railroadin'," "Fast Freight", "Wiggle Your Ears" and "Smallpox".

Saturday night will be his last appearance at the Capitol. He sings and dances exceptionally well and entertains with stories about the "Gang" and Hollywood. See him tonight—the "Kid" is clever.

BATTLE ON STREAM POLLUTION

SPORTSMEN of the district have taken the initiative in what promises to be a long drawn out battle, but one which is worthy and will enlist the aid of the great majority of city and rural residents alike—the battle against pollution of the Slippery Rock Creek.

The importance of the battle was emphasized by the mass meeting held in city hall Thursday night, when it was found that the question involved had attracted the attention of the state health department head and his corps of assistants to such an extent that they attended the meeting in person, and pledged their co-operation in the movement.

There seem to be a number of things that can be done to check pollution of the stream, and they must be done. New Castle, Lawrence County, and the other districts in this vicinity are not going to tolerate the ruination of the Slippery Rock creek, although indications are that it will require a lot of persistent hard work to achieve the result.

Public sentiment will be a large factor in the success of the plans. This simply means that hundreds and thousands of citizens have got to take an active part in this effort. They have got to show where they stand. They have got to get behind the plans which have been started by the sportsmen. And we believe that they will do it.

There is no reason for allowing spoilation of the picturesque and valuable Slippery Rock creek. If Grove City and Slippery Rock sewage disposal plants are the need, then it is up to these towns to proceed. New Castle was required to build a sewage disposal plant to protect the Beaver river, New Wilmington was required to build one to protect the Neshannock creek, and other towns in the district have been required by the state health department to do the same thing. In the case at Grove City it seems that the trouble is being remedied. In Slippery Rock however, there is no disposal plant. One needs to be provided it would seem from the discussions.

The other big source of stream pollution is the coal mines along the route of the stream. These can also be taken care of so that they will not add their acid discharge to the pollution of the steam, and they must be.

There shall be no letting up in this campaign until the Slippery Rock creek is effectually protected against pollution for the future.

ROOSEVELT'S AMENDMENT GOES THROUGH

A proposed amendment to the Constitution of New York which authorizes the acquisition of abandoned farm lands for reforestation purposes has been adopted by the people. It was warmly advocated by Governor Roosevelt. It was just as warmly opposed by former Governor Smith.

There has been a tendency to regard this altercation between Roosevelt and Smith as a test of political strength. It is, however, a little difficult to accept such conclusions. The amendment had passed two legislative sessions and was sent to Tuesday's poll for confirmation or rejection. It was not a party question. The voters of all parties were expected to consider it on its merits, and its merits have won. It was given hearty support by Tammany Hall. If an inference is to be drawn from this fact, it is that Smith did not have the confidence of Tammany.

Those who reason that its adoption has any bearing upon the Democratic nomination for President are entitled to their opinions. But the most that can be made out of it politically is that Tammany is not yet ready to break with Roosevelt even to oblige Smith.

THE OLD, OLD CONFLICT

The bureau of biological survey in the department of agriculture, which is supposed to know about wild game, predicted a decrease in the number of wild fowl this year. Consequently, the open season was shortened from two months to one month, as a conservation measure.

If the bureau is right, and it maintains stoutly that it is, there was every possible justification for shortening the open season on waterfowl. It is the bureau's duty to assemble data with the purpose of best serving the greatest number of people. There was nothing else for conscientious hunters to do but recommend that the season be shortened.

There are, however, two kinds of hunters. One kind has a conscience that prevents anything which might be harmful to the rights of others. The game warden never has to watch them. The other kind, however, has a conscience of convenience. If no one is watching they are willing to take the chance of overstepping their rights. They haven't noticed that there are any fewer ducks, so why should they quit shooting them a month earlier than usual? No one's going to put anything over on them.

It's the old, old conflict between those who look ahead and those who look straight down at the ground. The conscientious duck hunters have the upper hand and intend to keep it. Duck hunters in the years to come can thank them when the mallards settle down on their way south, just as duck hunters today are thanking another generation that ruled out the spring hunting season for waterfowl.

Shiny Green Peppers
Photographs of Eggplants
Beauty in Everything

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I know a man who finds beauty almost everywhere.

He takes photographs of old tin cans, piles of sewer pipes, shiny green peppers, abalone shells, wave-worn rocks, almost anything that meets his eye. Even of eggplants.

He walks up to them, doesn't disturb them, takes a picture of them in their natural poses, in just the right angle—and gives you BEAUTY you didn't know was there.

Ive seen a photograph he made of a streamer of kelp on a shiny beach in the twilight, and it was mysteriously snakily, lovely. . . . I hardly know why, but I know it was. . . . I'd walk that way and see that kelp and pick it up and "pop" the little pear-shaped fruit of the kelp and swing it around my head and toss it out to the waves and wash my hands and forget all about it. He comes along and sees a beauty that was lost to me—and makes a picture of it.

Then I can see it, as plain as anything. . . But HE had to show it to me. I'm looking for the big bursts of beauty that anyone can see: I'm looking for a stick to throw for a dog to chase. I miss a lot. But he's looking for beauty everywhere: he can find it in a great tree, in a gorgeous sunset, but he can find it, too, in all the little neglected places. He finds it in sticks and in stones, in homely faces, in tortured ones. Most of us recognize the obvious beauty of regular noses and well shaped chins: this man sees the beauty of character in the faces that we would dismiss as commonplace.

He's right. We are wrong. We live on little. He lives on much. His income is inexhaustible and tax-free and forever secure.

His secret is in seeing all things, all people, from the Right Angle. He knows that if he sets his camera at one point he will find only a jumble of lines and curves, no beauty. If he sets it at the Right Angle he will make a picture that anyone can see is lovely. He can look at people and see meanness and furtiveness and cowardice and cruelty. He can look at them from another angle and see patience and unselfishness and courage and kindness. He can find ugliness and let it go, he can find beauty and make it immortal.

Who wouldn't envy such a man and wish to be like him.

Once Overs

FUL STEAM AHEAD!

Recently you have taken a more serious view of life than before.

Something has roused you to a realization of how little effort you have made to the end of making your life successful.

You have worked hard and been fairly successful.

You feel that you have met the demands of the positions you have held.

But have you done anything more than has been expected of you?

Haven't you frittered your time at leisure moments instead of perfecting some branch of your chosen work, a preparation that might eventually add to your income?

You have lived a fairly enjoyable life.

You have not burdened yourself with many duties aside from those necessary to carry on creditably.

Perhaps you are experiencing an awakening.

It may be a little late but not too late to make up for some of the time you have wasted.

Get under way. Weak resolutions never materialize into anything worth while and it is time you put all you have got into an effort to forge ahead.

That you have come to a realization of how you have failed is the first point necessary for your improvement.

THE IDEAL

There's a beautiful realm,
In a region—somewhere,
Which the eye can not see,
Yet we know it is there;
For a vision of things
That entrances the soul,
Oft times beckons us on
To that marvelous goal.

There the tall poplars bend
When the soft winds sweep by.
And a few fleecy clouds
Deck the blue of the sky;
Also magical craft
Sail o'er silvery seas,
And the perfume of flow'rs
Gently floats on the breeze.

There blithe fairy-like forms
Dance in silvan-like dells,
To the musical strains
Of soft silvery bells;
In the sunset's bright glow
There's a city of gold,
And gay nymphs dance and sing
When the moonbeams unfold.

You may visit that realm
On sweet melody's wings,
As harmonious strains
Paints the vision it brings
To the spirit of those Whose ideal excels
The vain dross of a world
Where humanity dwells.

Report Of Great New Planet Suggests Vast Solar Group

Laymen Are Impressed By Scientific Capacity To Discover Bodies Whose Existence Can Be Calculated Only Through Their Influence On Solar System

Announcement by Professor Pickering that there is a planet among the outer bodies of the solar system whose year is more than 600 times longer than that of the earth, calls forth more plaudits for the achievements of modern astronomy. The fact that this body has never been seen by the human eye, but is declared to exist because there is evidence of its influence on other planets, adds to the fascination of the discovery.

Commenting on this reported member of the solar system, which has an orbit far beyond that of Pluto and is called "Planet P" by Professor Pickering, who believes that a total of three planets must be added to the known system, the NEW YORK SUN states: "It does not appear that astronomers in general have great confidence in the methods by which Professor Pickering has arrived at his conclusions regarding planets P, S. and T. His calculations are based chiefly on apparent irregularities in the orbital motion of Uranus, which may be due to the attraction of undiscovered outer planets, and on a grouping of certain cometary orbits which he believes the gravitational influence of these planets has brought about. No astronomer, however, doubts that undiscovered outer planets may exist. If tomorrow some observer should find a planet near one of the positions Professor Pickering has indicated, the man who scans the skies from the West Indies would be hailed as one of the mathematical wonders of the age."

Similar doubt is expressed by the NEW YORK HERALD-TRIBUNE, which observes: "The deduction will not be accepted hastily, one imagines, by other astronomers. The slight wabbles of Uranus in its orbit, upon which the deduction chiefly rests, are far from certain either in character or magnitude, yet upon this certainty depends the calculation of the unseen body. Perhaps the strongest item of Professor Pickering's evidence is that a second line of argument, depending on comets, seems to him to support his deduction from the planetary perturbations. There exist, it is well known, certain 'families' of comets the orbits of which are associated with the larger planets of Jupiter and Saturn, presumably because the intense gravitation attraction of these planets has reformed the comets' orbits into their present shape. A series of known comets not previously identified with any such family, Professor Pickering believes to be explained by assuming relationship with the unfound planet which he believes to exist."

On the other hand, the CLEVELAND NEWS thinks that "the evidence of the new planet is, it seems, quite conclusive," while the WORCESTER EVENING GAZETTE asserts: "The Pickering planet has not yet been seen, buit if watched for in the right quarter by an observer in the southern hemisphere it some day will be. And it will look like a disc in the sky—like a small, shiny gold piece—instead of a point of light, for it has a mass fifty times that of the earth." The Gazette is impressed by the fact that "the feat of Adams and Leverrier has twice been duplicated in two years," and comments: "As they located Neptune from studying the perturbations in the movements of Uranus, so Professors Lowell and Pickering worked from the known to the unknown with equal success."

"Two new members of Old Sol's family have been introduced in two years," remarks the NEW LONDON DAY, suggesting that "more are said to be somewhere out there in space," while the BUFFALO EVENING NEWS comments, "Astronomy long since brought its demonstrated facts far beyond the limits of the most unfettered human imagination," recording that the scientist is convinced that this body is "inferior only to Jupiter and Saturn in size." The News makes the suggestion: "After all, if miles could be substituted in the understanding for millions of miles, it would not seem so wonderful that earth, hovering around the sun at a distance of about 92 miles, should have a sister planet 7000 to 9000 miles farther out in space."

As to the significance of the announcement, the CLEVELAND NEWS states: "The discovery of new heavenly bodies next door to us, relatively speaking, is a hint of the wonders of the universe astronomers may be expected to reveal as methods and equipment become steadily more effective. The solar system explored, the universe beckons. Man's 'eyesight' still lags, however, behind the marvelous creations of his brain. At any time the inventioin of huge telescopes, beyond anything yet known, may change all this. The secrets of space that may in time be pried into by human eyes are almost as limitless as space itself."

"Presumably the light from the planet," according to the NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE, "will consist of reflected sunlight only, as is true of all the other planets that we know. By the time the sun's rays have reached the distance of five billion to nine billion miles which Profesor Pickering estimates to be the radius of the unfound planet's orbit, those rays will be greatly enfeebled. Still dimmer will be the reflection to the earth by the time the light rays have recrossed the void. The expected disk may be a mere gray spot against the sky, scarcely brighter than the sky itself."

"Had luck been with him," in the opinion of the NEW YORK TIMES, "Pickering might have received the credit for Pluto's discovery as early as 1919 when, presumably at his request, four plates taken at Mount Wilson were examined in vain for new outer planets. Thanks to a bequest made by Lowell, a re-examination last year revealed Pluto on the same plates not far from the position computed by Pickering. In the light of this record Professor Pickering is entitled to more than usual consideration when he declares his belief in the existence of at least three more thans-Neptunian planets, provisionally designated, P, S and T."

THE ODDS

The things men fear are glory's ripened deeds,
The darkest day brings forth man's brightest deeds.
It is the threat of imminent defeat
That ultimately makes the victory sweet
Who lives at last to triumph will at length
Recount the heavy odds which tried his strength.

Men think they wish to live their days in ease,
But peace, and comfort give no victories.
In difficulty lies all true delight
Fear becomes joy when wrongs are put to right.
The fretful failures which have tried the soul
Are glorious memories once we reach the goal.

Why are the tales of hardship proudly told?
Why do men still re-live their struggles old,
Re-call to mind with pride the storms they've known
And tell the long, dark night they wept alone.
Unless the dangers which they feared the most
Have grown to be the joys they choose to boast?

Time was we thought that cruel was our fate
But now we love the woes we bore in hate.
The care that brought the frown now brings a smile
Our happiest memory is our dreariest mile.
And it shall be, when we have lived them through
That these dark days shall prove our strength anew.

READY-TO-WEAR SCENARIO

A local man has become so bored by many of the motion picture scenarios that he has written one of his own for Fox or Lasky or any of those Hollywood folks who offer him the greatest financial encouragement to part with it. It's got such a big kick, it won't need much acting. Here 'tis:

There was a poor country girl, who was leaving her home to go to New York and look for work for she had to support the whole family, because her father had fallen down and hurt his knee. So just as she was leaving her loving sweetheart, Jack, said to her:

"Your love will soon grow cold."

Upon hearing that she made a solemn vow that every night at eight o'clock she's think of home and Jack and burst into tears.

One day in New York she was riding in a trolley, when a gentleman arose and offered her his seat But she refused it with scorn for she saw he wore a ring and thought, perhaps he was a married man. Then up spoke the conductor and said: "I'll never doubt you no more." At that he tore off his false whiskers and it was—Jack!

Just then she got a telgram that her father's knee was better and her aunt had died and left her forty seven thousand dollars.

That ought to go big in any man's theatre.

Special Campaign Salvation Army To Close Sunday

Special two weeks' intensive religious meeting campaign of the Salvation Army in connection with its "Fight It Through" campaign, will come to a close Sunday night. The meetings have been very successful and many people who have been attending the meetings, have started to live better lives.

Ensign V. Thomsen, officer in charge, in discussing the work of the army, stated that "our religious work is just as important as our relief work. If we dispense with either, the Salvation Army will cease in its usefulness in any community. The spirit of the army he said was "to fight through the depression with its cheerful religion, songs and methods of Social Service Work." The next three months, the Army will plunge into a relief program such as has not been experienced since the World War and to that end is co-operating with every agency, where necessary, and in many other places individually.

Stoves Are Needed For Mission Work

B. J. Watkins, superintendent of the Rescue Mission is again appealing to the public for coal cooking or heating stoves for the needy of the city.

He has many calls every day from people who have no means of heating their houses and if any one has a stove they are not using or can tell Mr. Watkins where they may be secured he will call for them.

He will teach "The Principles of Jesus" and "Old Testament History" and credits will be given with both courses. The association recommends that all Sabbath school workers and teachers of the city and county take advantage of these courses, especially those who attended the recent Bible training course held in the First Baptist church.

D. S. Williams gave a splendid report of the Altoona convention at Thursday's meeting.

APOSTLE'S CREED IS SERMON THEME

In the First Presbyterian church, the pastor, Dr. Walter E. McClure, will preach two sermons Sunday introducing a series of sermons on the Apostle's Creed. The morning sermon will be introductory, the theme being "I Believe" and at the evening service he will take up 'I Believe in God the Father Almighty.' The series will continue until each doctrine has been considered.

A questionnaire will be submitted to the congregation Sunday for answers to their benefits in these doctrines.

Ensign Thomsen At Conference In Pittsburgh

Reports Are Received Concerning Relief Work Being Done By Salvation Army

Ensign V. Thomsen, officer in charge of the work of the Salvation Army in this city, has returned from Pittsburgh, where he attended a conference of more than a hundred officers of the western Pennsylvania district. Colonel W. M. Arnold, chief secretary of the eastern territory of the United States, represented Commander Evangeline Booth, head of the Salvation Army in the United States, who is filling a speaking tour in Europe.

The problem of community chest financing was discussed. Relief activities for the next few months were outlined. The Salvation Army is already engaged in a tremendous relief program in many cities and finances for the efforts are generously being contributed by wealthy citizens.

The feeling that business was on the upward trend was reported, especially in the larger cities, as there was a slow but sure falling off in the demand for family relief.

The feeling of the conference was that as far as the extreme poor were concerned that their suffering for the winter was largely being taken care of, but that there was another class, the members of which are suffering intensely from the lack of employment and not being accustomed to a lower standard of living, who are struggling to keep poverty from their door.

NON-RESIDENT HUNT

Ninety-seven non-resident hunters licenses have been issued. The major portion of the out-of-the-state hunters are from Ohio.

Sales of 1930 and 1931 are almost contemporaneous) The 1930 total 7000 is 200 in advance of the 1931 sales.

PLAN DUAL PROGRAM

It is the plan of Superintendent W. M. Johnson of the Mercer county schools to collaborate with J. C. Syling, of Lawrence county in arranging a program for the annual school directors convention.

The convention will be held in January, says Johnson. Dates have not been set as yet and won't be for some time.

The plan was worked out with Lawrence county last year and found very successful. The same speakers are used at the two conventions held on respective dates and at the same hours. Good roads make it possible for the program members to travel between the two towns in time to keep the two conventions active.

PLAN COURT TERM

No further court hearings are carded until November 16th announces Judge J. A. McLaughry. The jurist will open the November Common Pleas term of 63 cases, largest in county history, on this date.

It is posible that if the number of cases actually tried of the list demands it an assistant jurist will be secured.

And if there is any congestion in the jail where he is detained, Al Capone would be glad to relieve it.—The Lowell Evening Leader.

LOOKING BACK IN NEW CASTLE

Recent election attracted the attention of local people in many ways and one of the memories that it brought back after almost forty years was the announcement that General Coxey, as he has been known since 1894, had been elected as mayor of Massillon, O. In the minds eye of many local people this recalled an event, which was heralded throughout the land, for it was in 1894, just thirty-seven years ago, that General Coxey started on his march for Washington, D. C., with what was termed as Coxey's Army and which consisted of varying numbers of real hoboes for the most part, to obtain some redress for the so-called unemployed of those days. When the army started on its journey on foot, its course led through this city. There are still quite some numbers of people here, who recall the march of General Coxey and his army, then numbering some two hundred men, along Washington street. Their line of march led them through the city by that street and when the army reached what is now Cascade Park, but what was then known as Brinton Park, it took possession and camped for the night. It might be mentioned that the camp and the army were the center of attraction, especially for the younger generation of that day, as long as they were within reasonable distance of the city.

LETTERS TO THE NEWS

Letters Intended For This Column Must Be Signed With Name And Address Of Writer

ON NAVY CONTROVERSY

Editor of The News,

Dear Mr. Conway:

We have seen in the News each evening articles regarding the controversy between President Hoover and Mr. Wm. H. Gardiner, President of the Navy League. We would like to call your attention to a few facts in this matter, as we feel Mr. Gardiner is not giving all the facts in the relations between the United States and the British fleets.

According to the latest figures available from the statistics of the Navy League, the British are building 75,520 tons as against our 87,610 tons. The British are spending for new construction only approximately $5,000,000 (less than $20,000,000) while we are spending approximately $70,000,000 for new construction. President Hoover has approved for the next fiscal year $65,000,000, the huge figure to which the "big navy" group is objecting as inadequate.

Mr. Gardiner refuses to recognize that the purposes and functions of a navy have changed since nearly all the civilized nations of the world have accepted the Covenant of the League of Nations and the Kellogg Pack as international law. When the Council of the League can invoke the Pact for Renunciation of War in its dealings with one of the three great naval powers as it did recently, the Pact can no longer be ignored as a scrap of paper.

The London Naval Treaty set a maximum tonnage limit for the British and American fleets of 1,125,000 tons which shall not be exceeded on December 31, 1936. The present tonnage is 1,251,840 tons for the United States and 1,250,247 tons for Great Britain. These totals will have to be reduced in the five years yet to run.

Additional tonnages are allowed in certain categories and replacements of ships over-age. In replacements, Great Britain is allowed more tonnage, as their ship are older, while the United States is allowed to replace 150,000 tons of destroyers many of which are almost as good as new.

In the building of new ships of different categories, the United States is building in all 87,610 tons as against 75,520 tons of the British.

Respectfully

The International Relations Dept., of the Woman's Club.

MRS. WM. L. COSEL, Chairman.

This Rabbit Must Have Been Possum

Motorcycle Officers Ray Richards and Ralph Criswell, according to the story they have been telling about the police station, had a rather unusual experience one day this week, while out spending a short time hunting the elusive bunny.

According to the story, they had been out a little while, when Criswell bagged a rabbit. He placed it in his hunting coat and a short time later, he shot another. As he was placing the second rabbit in his hunting coat, the first jumped out of the coat and made its escape, being apparently very much alive, and very little the worse of having been shot at by the officer.

FORMER P. O. MAN, RETIRED, VISITS

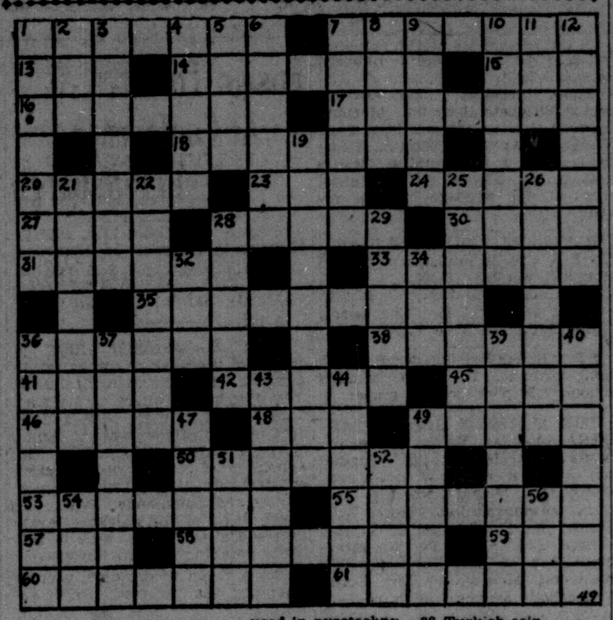

Duck hunting in Michigan has furnished plenty of thrills for Frank M. Wilson, former superintendent of mails of the New Castle post office, now residing in Michigan, it was learned when Wilson visited here for a brief time this week. He has just left for his Ann Arbor home.

Wilson retired a month ago from his duties as head of the mail operations at the post office.

Coke Production Continues Good

(International News Service)

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Nov. 6.—Coke production in the Connellsville district, with an increase of 2,700 tons the past week, is advancing to the high levels of last spring, a survey by International News Service revealed.

Total production of 12,100 tons for last week was the largest reported since the last week in March. For the corresponding week last year, production was 17,500 tons or 5,420 tons more than the present output.

The substantial increase last week resulted from the firing of 126 additional furnaces, the largest increase in active ovens noted for several months past. The increased demand for coke has come chiefly from makers of water gas and from domestic consumers. Such demands were expected to show further increases during the coming winter months.

Foundry coke requirements showed little activity and the demand for furnace coke was met by contracts.

The estimated production of coke during the week ended last Saturday was 12,100 tons divided as follows: Connellsville district; 2,400 tons, an increase of 200 tons, and Lower Connellsville; 9,700 tons, an increase of 2,520 tons.

ALWAYS LAST AT DINNER HE SAYS

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 7.—Meal time, all the time, it was just a case of being last for Merret Bell.

At the dinner table the platter would be passed first to his mother-in-law, Bell told Divorce Judge Samuel H. Silbert. Next came his wife's two children by a former marriage and then Mrs. Bell. What was left he got, Bell said.

When the family went for an automobile ride the mother-in-law got in first and after her came the two children and Mrs. Bell. Never, Bell said, was there enough room for him.

"Family life for me was nothing but last place, last say, or last word." Bell complained.

He got a divorce on grouds of extreme cruelty.

Patrol Station In New Quarters

State Highway Officers Have Headquarters On Grant Street

FOURTH OFFICER ASSIGNED HERE

If the citizenry is at all pleased at the removal of the local sub station of the State highway patrol to the Youngstown road by housing the state policemen on West Grant street, the officers themselves are loud in their praise of their new headquarters in the old Dickson mansion.

The symbol of the patrol on a metal support in front of 125 West Grant street reveals the spacious headquarters of the sub station. The residence is leased to the state by Mrs. Harry Mechling who resides in a section of the old homestead.

The dedication of the memorial to Corporal Brady Paul brought many distinguished officers of the patrol to the sub station. Included in the group of about 55 officers and patrolmen from Troop B of Greensburg were the following who paid a visit to the station here:

Capt. P. J. Dorr, deputy superintendent of the patrol; Capt. B. E. Miller, commander of Troop B; Lieut. E. J. Henry, northwestern district lieutenant; First Sergt. John Bendt, Sergt. T. L. Garno, district sergeant.

Add Fourth Officer

The personnel of the local substation is comprised of Corporal L. J. Lawton, and Officers M. P. Sarko and W. E. Stoops. It was announced that Officer H. F. Cunningham, who has been assigned here to increase the staff of the sub station, will arrive today.

Pvt. E. J. Foust, with the Revenue Patrol at Pittsburgh, is a constant visitor here and works with the local staff whenever he is in this city.

Chambers Shows No Leniency To Farrell Bandit

Local Judge In Sentencing Mercer County Prisoner Imposes Stiff Term

MERCER, Nov. 7.—Judge James Chambers of New Castle, in presiding at sentence court for those who had been convicted before him last week, handed down a number of stiff sentences and accompanied several of them with severe reprimands.

Lawrence Sims, a Farrell Negro, who changed a plea of not guilty to a charge of robbery and larceny from the person to one of guilty after the commonwealth had established his guilt, drew the feature sentence. He was fined $5 and given from six to 12 years.

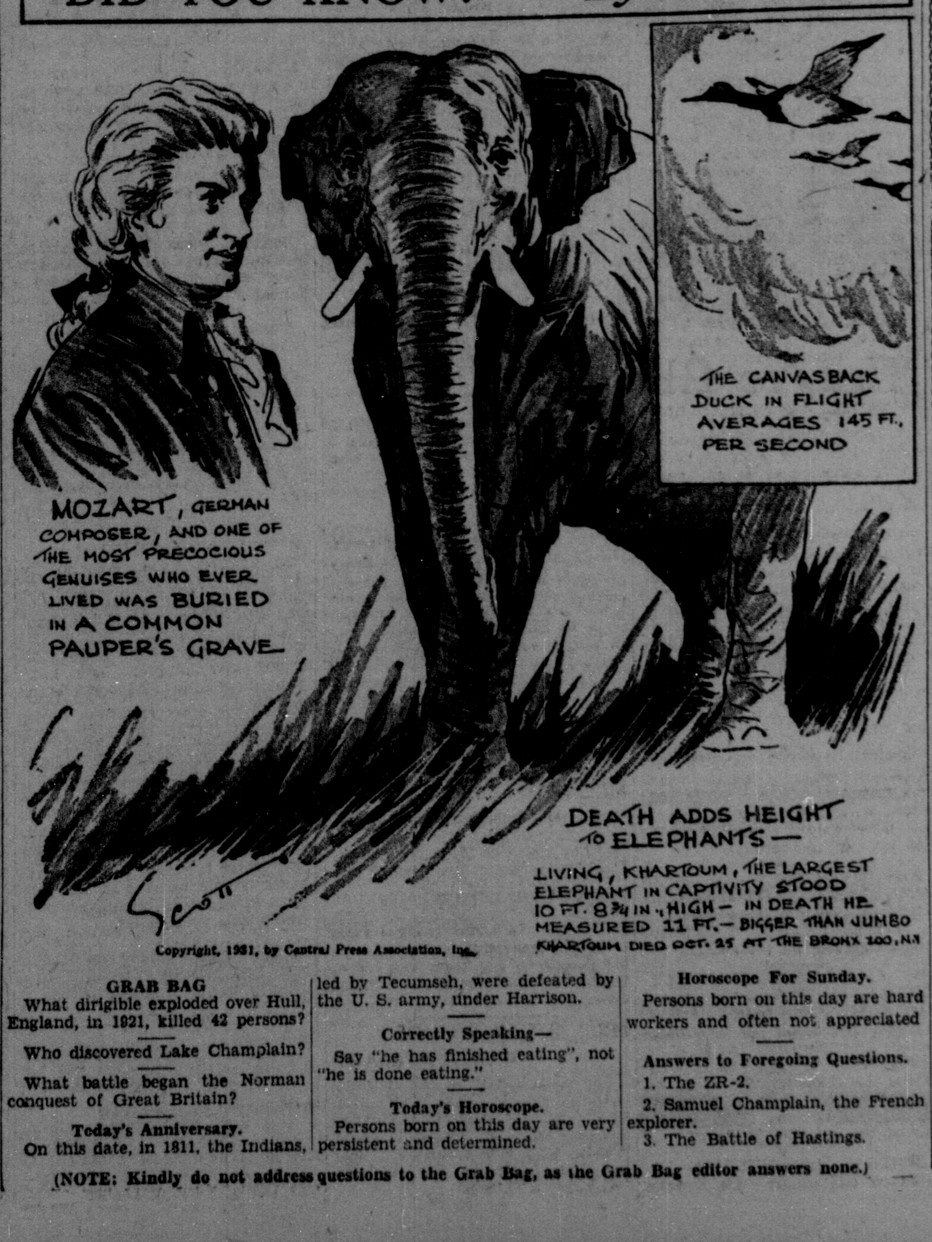

Judge Chambers took occasion to inform Sims that he had been before him in Lawrence county, and that he had also served a term in Michigan, none of which had seemed to have a reforming effect upon him. The judge said he would give Sims a term which would keep him from preying upon society for a while.

Sims and another Negro named Sam Patterson were charged with holding up a man in Farrell and stealing his pocketbook containing $55. His companion confessed to the robbery and placed the entire blame upon Sims.

Sam Patterson, the other Negro in the case, was fined $5 and given two to four years in the Western penitentiary.

If handsome Gov. Ritchie, now serving his fourth term—or is it his fifth or sixth?—should not be nominated for President, Maryland might compensate him with the governorship for life.—The Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

Richards Talks To St. Andrew's Club

Howard B. Richards Gives Fine Talk To Members Of St. Andrew's

Howard B. Richards, superintendent of the New Castle Water company, was the principal speaker last evening at the weekly meeting of the St. Andrew's Athletic club held in the church.

The talk delivered in his own inimitable way proved very interesting to the listeners. Mr. Richards used up the best part of two hours in talking heart to heart like with the athletes, and then he answered all manner of questions.

Mr. William Wignall chairman of the St. Andrew's club was the first speaker of the evening and introduced Mr. Richards.

The St. Andrew's club started out not so many months ago with a membership of 24, and last night there were 41 present. The aim of the members is for 50. At a late hour refreshments were served by a committee consisting of Mr. Wignall, J. Hetrick and John Hitchens. The matter of the St. Andrew's basketball team was talked over. There are eighteen out for basketball at the present time and it is indicated that a strong quintet will result.

The next meeting of the club will take place next Friday night at 7:30 and all members are asked to be present as there is some important business to be taken up.

Fire Loss Is Kept At Minimum In City

Lynn's Report To Reeves Shows Only $3,340.78 Loss During Month

October, 1931 proved a month of few fires, unlike the same month of last year when the fire of the Blair Strip Steel Company swelled the loss in fires that year to the greatest amount in many years.

Fire Chief Lynn's monthly report of fire losses in the city and county to Superintendent of Public Safety Reeves, just made public, discloses that during October the fire department answered 29 alarms including one to Shenango township.

The loss for the month in city and county amounted to only $3,340.78, indicating that the department had kept the loss to a minimum through excellent work in quelling fires.

During October the only out-of-city call received was to the home of Jacob Klish, Alvaretta boulevard, off the Butler road, Shenango township.

The city loss by fire was insured with the exception of a loss of about $500 on which no insurance was carried, the report of Lynn points out.

'Four Hundred' Figures

Social Leaders Of New York And Nation As Seen By Ethelda Bedford, New Castle News Staff Writer

MRS. RODMAN WANAMAKER

By ETHELDA BEDFORD

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—You often see her wandering about the paddocks at fashionable horse shows, for there is nothing Mrs. Rodman Wanamaker enjoys more than looking at thoroughbreds. She likes polo games, too—and wearing sports clothes.

A fair-complexioned brunette, tall and with a roundness of both face and figure, Mrs. Wanamaker wears clothes with an enviable nonchalance.

One of her friends remarked one day to me as we spied her at a horse show, when it was raining—"There's Alexandra Wanamaker. She looks smart even in a raincoat!"

Of the Drexel Clan.

As the former Alexandra Van Rensselaer Devereaux, of the well-known Drexel clan Mrs. Wanamaker enjoyed a brilliant time in Gotham society, as well as Philadelphia and Palm Beach.

Her grandmother was the late Mrs Alexander Van Rensselaer, who was born a Drexel, you know, and who reigned for years as the "first lady" of snooty Quaker City society!

As a debutante her parties were always extremely well appointed and the guest lists included THE people.

She was known as one of the most feted debutantes of Philadelphia, and certainly no Gotham hostess withheld any feature from a party in her honor which would lend to its enjoyment regardless of expense.

Probably it was a mutual interest in entertaining and being entertained well that helped along her romance with "Roddy" Wanamaker.

When she, the daughter of Mrs. Radcliffe Chester, Jr., married the grandson of the late John Wanamaker, society on two continents was interested. It was the joining of two well-known and well-liked families.

Aviation Enthusiast.

She has many other interests in common with her husband. They both like sports and aviation. He has won recogonition in aviation circles.

Mrs. Rodman Wanamaker

The Wanamaker parties are known for their lavishness—throughout the east and also in Palm Beach.

At present they are residing on the Philadelphia "Main Line". Until recently they occupied the lovely house on Sutton place known as Chauncey Olcott's Lucky House.

Mrs. Wanamaker is the niece of John R. Fell, whose first wife now is Mrs. Ogden Livingston Mills (a "great lady") also Mrs. Kelsey Cassatts and Mrs. Gauverneur Cadwalader.

Society holds no more colorful figures than the "Roddy" Wanamakers ...their comings and goings, their activities large or small are topics of interest throughout social circles, both of the old and young.

MY NEW YORK

BY JAMES ASWELL

By Central Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—What few New Yorkers know:

That the movie houses are warring on the wholesale distribution of passes, things having got so bad that cheap-skate pass cadgers were coming out and demanding "their money" back on the grounds they had seen the show somewhere before.

* * *

That the biggest industry in the Bronx used to be pianos and organs, but that nowadays these instruments are feeling the buyer shortage very severely, with none of the 60 odd factories running full time.

* * *

That an editor of a great metropolitan newspaper bought a speakeasy for his staff—"to know where the boys are when I need them."

* * *

That to be a member of the St. Nicholas club you must have ancestors who were New Yorkers prior to 1785.

* * *

That the overthrow of the Russian czarist regime was plotted and financed here in New York.

* * *

That the musicians dressed as Cossacks in a Second avenue Russian restaurant are all Communists in good standing.

* * *

That Lily Damita, the stage-screen actress, won't eat or smile unless she is falling in love—her happiest time.

* * *

That if nobody would pay for radio entertainers, the broadcasting stations would still be thronged with crooners eager to go on the air.

* * *

That Minsky, the producer of low-down and rowdy burlesque shows, is a college graduate.

* * *

That the New York Academy of Design has the only exhibition to which anybody at all may send a canvass.

* * *

That the old word picture of the Battery, "crowded with emigrants," is out—as a result of the operation of the quota laws.

* * *

That Joe Zelli, old-time operator of the famous collegiate night club in Paris (although Joe is himself a young man) is confident he is going to clean up when he breaks into the Manhattan night life this month, but veterans of the game are laughing up their sleeves.

* * *

That natives of the Syrian quarter, most sunless neighborhood outside the caverns of the financial district, sing and quarrel in Arabic, usually thought of as a dead language.

* * *

That six millions in gold which arrived the other day from Europe to be met by an escort of guards, machine guns, tanks, armored cars and so on, was carried to the boat from its Bremerhaven bank in an old express wagon.

* * *

That (according to the wise boys) the banks installed those automatic devices for receiving deposits at all hours largely because of the huge sums turned over late at night by fashionable speakeasies.

* * *

That Swedish punch, concocted of rum and rice, is attributed to a country which produces neither.

* * *

That newspaper circles are buzzing with rumors about the founding soon of a Democratic paper to take the place of the defunct World.

Pent house rentals for the winter are the lowest in the history of Manhattan . . . Joan Crawford is again a brunette, after a lengthy membership in the platinum tress sorority . . . Chevalier is the thriftiest of all the movie stars; to him, the first thousand is the hardest—to spend.

STATIC BLAMED FOR SMALL FIRE

AMBRIDGE, Pa., Nov. 7.—Spontaneous combustion, generated by static electricity in some silk and lisle stockings, is believed by firemen to have been the cause of a fire in a basket of clothing at the home of John Josesta, 1017 Bernadine avenue, which aroused the residents at 5 o'clock this morning and resulted in damage estimated at $50. The blaze destroyed the basket of garments, burned the linoleum on the floor and damaged a table nearby before firemen reached the scene with chemicals.

HUNTER MISTAKES MAN FOR TURKEY

ALTOONA, Pa., Nov. 7.—Raymond J Miller, 38, of Bellwood, was taken to the Altoona hospital this morning suffering from gunshot wounds of the left side of the chest and both legs, received when one of his three hunting companions mistook him for a turkey.

Find Evangelist Robbing Station Is Wounded Twice

Evangelist Of Van Wert, O., Found Robbing Gas Station—Surprised By Officers

WAS HARD UP FOR MONEY CONTENDS

(International News Service)

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Nov. 7.—Suffering from serious bullet wounds the Rev. Orville C. Rutledge, 39, an evangelist of Van Wert, O., was under arrest today charged with attempting to rob a filling station.

Two detectives shot the evangelist twice when he refused to surrender when they caught him in the act of holding up a gasoline station last night. He was armed with a revolver, police said.

The minister explained that the depression had cut down his income from the pulpit and he had to get some money some way, his captors declared.

Rutledge had been a minister in Van Wert for nearly 15 years, he said.

Equipment Found

Police said they found cards in the evangelist's car announcing an evangelistic service to be conducted by Rutledge. The police also found shells, a mask, black glasses and letters in the machine.

Ordered by Rutledge to put up his hands the station attendant refused to obey and Rutledge was backing out when he was ordered to halt by the officers. He turned and leveled his gun at them but Detective Lininger fired first.

Rutledge has been pastor of the United Brethern Tabernacle at Van Wert for the past four years and a minister in the same town for fifteen years. He went there from Oklahoma and organized a group of ten men who went to the State prison at Michigan City several times to hold evangelistic meetings.

School Players To Start Season

First Play Of Fall To Be Given At Senior High Friday Evening

Next Friday evening under the direction of Miss Clara Hartsuff the Senior high school players begin their dramatic season with Alberto Casella's tragic-comedy, "Death Takes A Holiday." Of European authorship the play was re-written for the American stage by Walter Ferris. Its first performance in this country occurred in 1929 at the Ethel Barrymore Theater in New York.

"Death Takes A Holiday" has been well chosen. The stage setting for an evening interior, the interplay of shadow and brilliant illumination, shots and shrieks and distant midnight chimes, with the mysterious figure of the Unknown hovering near, make a background with a distinct atmosphere. Twelve high school students will be the group of friends among whom the Shadow will take his vacation and from whom he will learn much about the love of life and the fear of death.

The dialog is spirited, there is a considerable admixture of humor. Romance is the keynote. Death masquerading as a mortal for three short days creates dramatic situations that grow in intensity till the King of Shadows exists with a willing bride. "Death Takes A Holiday" is real drama and the excellent cast chosen to present it are on their mettle to produce a performance even better than usual.

Psychology Of Lying Is Analyzed By Youth In Home Questionnaire

Successful Mother Of Only Son Tells Of Development Of Boy's Character And Satisfactory Results

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.
Head Division Parental Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University.

"Dear Dr. Myers: In spite of the fact that my son, an only child, is now past 25, I never fail to read your helpful articles. I clip many of them and am building a scrap book for "The Parents of my Grandchildren", looking to the future.

"My son's father was called from us when the boy was just past nine, and I have taken very seriously the agreeable task of developing his character. He always was taught that lying was a serious fault and at the base of most crimes. Recently, when I was looking over a scrapbook which I prepared for him—ideas, and all sorts of interesting data and evidence of his progress—I ran across a questionnaire which I had prepared upon an occasion when he had told me a lie with designing intent. It was harmless in nature, but because it was designing I thought that I should probably treat it even more seriously. He was 15 years of age at the time and somehow I felt that his answers would be of interest to you, because reading them as I did again today, I feel that they manifested concentrated thought and intelligence—and convinced me that the teaching he had received from his father and me had obtained satisfactory results. Here are the questions and replies:

The Evil of Lying.

"1. Causes. Give at least three. 2. Effect of lie upon liar. 3. Effect of lying upon ones lied about or to. 4. Effect on loved ones. 5. Consequences. 6. Effect on character of liar.

"Answers: Causes—1. To avoid trouble. 2. Malicious intent. 3 Good motives.

"Effect on liar—Guilty conscience, mental agony, brooding and worry.

"Effect on ones lied about or to—In case of question 2 it gets the liar into trouble. In 3 it puts the lair's mind at east, temporarily; if the motive was good the reaction of the person lied to or about will be satisfactory; if of malicious nature there is no limit to the evil effect.

"Effect on loved ones—If one is caught in the lie there are sorrow, mental torment and worry.

"Consequences—If he gets away with it he escapes trouble. If not he faces serious trouble.

"Effect on character of liar—If he gets away with it he tries it again. If he does not succeed he tries it anyway and it makes him feel cheap. Each one you get away with makes you more hardened and then it becomes a habit and leads to criminal acts."

* * *

In closing her letter the mother writes: "On the occasion of last Mother's day the critic of those departments—my son's 'chief'—wrote me such a beautiful tribute, to my boy and to his mother addressing it in this way, 'To a mother who has done a good job of boy raising'. You may well imagine that I have never received anything that pleased me as much as that letter, for I have worked against great odds."

* * *

Answer: I want to thank you most sincerely for this letter, mother. You have a right to be proud. The boy's analysis of the psychology of lying is the best I have ever seen. I wish I might have the privilege to meet that young man some day.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

R. G., Leola, S. D.: "Please tell the symptoms, cause and treatment of trench mouth."

Answer: "Trench mouth" was the name given during the war to the infection usually known as Vincent's infection. It is caused by a combination of three germs, and is very common. It occurs in several forms—one a severe form of pyorrhoea, or inflammation of the gums. One is an active sore throat like tonsilitis. Treatment consists of antiseptic mouth washes and gargles during the active stage and painting with iodine afterwards. Intravenous injections of neo-arsphenamine are necessary in stubborn cases.

Washington Bank May Be Reopened

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 7.—The Washington Trust Company here, which closed its doors early last month, may be reopened within 30 days, it was indicated here today, if plans now under consideration by directors of the bank are successful.

Efforts to obtain new eastern capital for the institution, it is understood, have been made and are progressing. The bank did not deplete its reserve before closing, officials pointed out, as directors took action for closing as soon as a run on Washington banks became apparent.

MEN'S BIBLE CLASS PLANS FOR DINNER

At the regular monthly meeting of the Men's Bible class of the First Methodist church Friday evening, plans were promulgated for the annual get-together dinner and social meeting, at which time a good speaker will give the talk of the evening.

The men decided to make a gift of $300 to Miss Mary Anderson, missionary at Algiers, for her work in that country.

Correct this sentence: "I drink a little myself," said he, "and I don't mind trusting my family with a driver who takes a few snorts."

Rocky Road Ahead For Legislators

State Legislators In Extraordinary Session Face Grave Problems

Governor Pinchot's Proposed Plan For Aiding Unemployed May Not Find Accord

By JOSEPH A. LOFTUS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, Nov. 7.—Pennsylvania's legislature, called into extraordinary session to devise relief measures for the unemployed, will travel a rocky road before, and if, it attains the objectives Gov. Pinchot outlined in his fifteen-point legislative program.

Already attacked by Democratic leaders as failing to outline any method of lifting the burden of relief from the tax-payer, Governor Pinchot's program today faces the positive opposition of one powerful state-wide organization and the possible repudiation by another.

One proposal, that a tax be imposed on not only outdoor advertising but also on the business of outdoor advertising, has drawn a storm of protest. J. R. Allen, president of the Association Outdoor Advertisers of Pennsylvania, wired International News Service that his organization would vigorously oppose any attempt to enact such legislation.

Protests Heard

Allen maintained that such enactment would defeat its own purpose—that the excise inevitably would result in a loss of business to the advertisers with a consequent reduction of men employed by members of the association.

Second among the 15 points destined for a thorough raking over is the proposal for an additional tax on gasoline at the rate of two cents per gallon for two years. E. Edward Cable, president of the Pennsylvania Motor Federation, has called the executive board of the organization to meet in Harrisburg on Friday, November 13.

Organized motordam in Pennsylvania has concentrated in this body a powerful factor of public opinion, and the board's decision will be awaited as a fairly definite indication of the destiny in store for the gas tax legislation.

Aside from the motor board's reaction to the proposition, speculation exists as to the stand to be taken by the gasoline companies and local political leaders are not inclined to take the attitude of the dealers in 1929 as a definite gauge in the present situation.

Gasoline Tax

When the extra cent was tacked on by the 1929 Assembly, the companies maintained an apparently indifferent attitude. Gasoline business, in common with all other lines of production and distribution, shared in the prosperity of that period.

Now, with the depression already making serious inroads upon gasoline revenue, supporters of this form of excise have not excluded the producers in their reckoning of the possible opposition the bill would meet.

The law providing for that extra cent, incidentally, expired last July 1, returning the tax to three cents on the gallon. The governor's proposal would mean a five-cent tax, or more than 45 per cent of the total retail price of gasoline.

Blow for Pinchot

The recent opinion of Attorney General William A. Schnader, definitely cutting off the most direct path by which the commonwealth could give relief to the unemployed, came as another but not surprising blow to administrations supporters.

The attorney general's opinion explained that the state constitution forbids the commonwealth from appropriating funds to provide for the jobless the necessities of life—food, clothing, shelter—or the contribution of such funds by the state to those in need to purchase the necessities. To make such provision, even through welfare or state agencies, the opinion declared, would be equally illegal.

Handicaps thus far making their appearance are deemed neither destructive storms nor insurmountable barriers, but legislators see in them the seeds of protracted and possible bitter debate, log-rolling and resulting delay.

How Drugs For Coughs Take Effect

Mixtures To Alleviate Throat Tickling Are Popular

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Cough mixtures are probably consumed in larger amounts than any other class of drugs except cathartics. Cathartics have a year-round popularity, but from now on until sprig, sprig, beautiful sprig, cough mixtures will vie even with them.

The ingredients of various cough mixtures are of two kinds. One sort is absorbed by the stomach and carried by the blood to the bronchial tubes and lungs and cast out there, carrying along the germs and mucous which keep up the cough.

The other sort of ingredient which makes cough mixtures of any value affects the throat itself, soothing it or cooling it. This deadens the reflex which irritates the cough, and keeps you from hacking and whooping without getting anything up.

Of the first class, the favorite drug is chloride of ammonia. This is a very valuable drug. For a long time students of drugs thought it had no action. But doctors and patients kept using it just the same and in most cases when that happens the scientists are wrong and the practitioners are right. So it turned out with chloride of ammonia. It was discovered that one of its most valuable assets was that it could produce an acid condition in the body. Then it was found that in a cold or respiratory infection, that apparently was what was lacking—the body had an alkaline reaction. So the chloride of ammonia not only helped the cough but also counteracted the deranged bodily chemistry. Nowadays chloride of ammonia is one of the most widely used drugs.

Another of the drugs which, when absorbed by the stomach, is excreted through the lungs, is turpentine, usually administered in the form of terpene hydrate.

Of the substances which soothe the throat, the best is probably a drug you have never heard of as a drug—sugar. Most cough mixtures you will find are sweetened. They are "syrups"—Syrup of willd cherry, syrup of hypophosphites, syrup of tar, etc. These syrups are simply saturated solutions of sugar. One of the best things to sooth a tickling cough is a piece of candy dissolved in the mouth. It keeps the larynx from "wanting to cough." It stops that tickling, deep in the throat. The syrup in cough mixtures do the same thing, except that they are more expensive.

Of the same sort of ingredient is camphor or menthol. These, as you know, cool the mouth and throat and keep you from coughing for no purpose.

In evaluating cough mixtures it should be remembered that cough itself is valuable. It brings up infective material which should not be allowed to accumulate in the chest. But continuous coughing irritates the throat, so that when a cough has lasted a long time it is the result as much of the irritation of the throat as the desire to remove secretions. For both of these purposes the ingredients in cough mixtures are designed.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

A. L., Orange, N. J.: "My child, a boy of three and a half years, stutters. Is there anything that can be done for him?"

Answer: Stuttering is often relieved by a course of training in a stuttering school. There are several in New York and Philadelphia. It would be improper for me to select out any special one for recommendation because almost all of them are excellent.

X.: "I'm wanting reliable information about epilepsy. What causes it? Is it inherited? Can it be cured? I am considering marrying a man who has it."

Answer: Gowers says, "there are few diseases in the production of which inheritance has a more marked influence." The actual cause is usually impossible to determine: it is an increase in the excitability of the brain. Of cases beginning under ten years few are arrested, whereas of those beginning at puberty the opposite is true. (Osler.)

STATE 4-H CLUB MEMBERS JOIN IN RADIO PROGRAM

Pennsylvania 4-H club members will participate in the National Achievement Day radio program, November 7th. They will be joined by club members of West Virginia in the broadcast from station KDKA, Pittsburgh.

Starting at 12:30 p. m. Eastern Standard Time, the first part of the program will come from Washington, D. C. The United States Marine band will play "Stars and Stripes Forever". Dr. R. A. Pearson, chairman, executive committee, Association of Land-Grant and Universities, will then speak. This period of the broadcast then will close with the Dreaming song, played by the Marine band.

Following the station announcement at 12:46, the Pennsylvania and West Virginia state club songs will be sung. Director M. S. McDowell of the Pennsylvania State College agricultural extension service, then will speak on "Economic and Social Trends Affecting the Lives of Our Rural Young People." A. L. Baker, state club leader for Pennsylvania, will tell what 4-H clubs are doing to help young people meet economic problems. West Virginia club members will then furnish an instrumental number, followed by a talk on what 4-H clubs are doing to help rural young people meet social problems, by a West Virginia speaker. Club girls from Beaver county and from Armstrong county, Pennsylvania, will play two instrumental numbers. The entire group will join in the song "Follow the Gleam" at the close of the state program.

From Washington then will come the strains of "The Plowing Song" played by the Marine band. C. W. Warburton, director of extension work, United States Department of Agriculture, will then address the radio audience, and the Marine band will play "The Star Spangled Banner" as the closing number.

PREPARE GARDEN SOIL FOR EARLY PLANTING

Successful Lawrence county gardeners have found that it is a good practice to prepare part of the garden in the fall for early spring seeding of certain vegetables. A small strip is sufficient.

Spinach should be sown in the spring before the ground dries enough for soil preparation. A wet spring also delays the seeding of early peas which need a well-firmed seedbad. Early lettuce, onion sets, beets, carrots, and radishes can be planted earlier on fall-prepared ground than on soil which must be worked up in the spring.

Simply spade or plow a small area in the fall, turning under manure if available. Allow the soil to remain in rough condition over the winter. As soon as the soil dries sufficiently in the spring, rake the area level, and proceed to plant as on spring-prepared soil. The seedbed will be firm and the soil finer than on freshly turned soil.

STATE COLLEGE OFFERS POULTRY SHORT COURSE

New and less expensive methods of production and marketing will be the central theme of the eleventh annual Poultry Short course at the Pennsylvania State college, November 9 to 12.

General information will include talks on turkey production, poultry plant organization, and poultry correspondence courses.

Flock replacement will be stressed in talks on breeding for egg production and hatchability, breeding for large egg size, incubation problems, the value of breed improvement work, fundamental principles of brooding, and the relation of brooding to chick diseases.

Under the subject of nutrition and poultry management, the program will include nutritional investigations and what they mean, the formation of rations for laying and growing stock, feeding practices, remodeling old poultry houses and barns, a diversified poultry business, what poultry farm records show, and the place of business on the poultry farm.

Marketing talks will be given on candling, grading, and packing eggs, preparing poultry for market, and methods of marketing eggs. Talks on disease will cover the control and eradication of pullorum, and poultry parasites and their control.

Additional events on the program include an inspection trip of the college poultry plant, an informal get-together with members of the Penn State Poultry club, and a banquet.

WHAT IS A CLOUDBURST?

Rain falls during rainfall, but clouds do not burst when there is a "cloudburst". United States Weather Bureau experts say that sometimes strong upward currents of air hold raindrops up from underneath and prevent them from promptly reaching the ground.

Then the drops gather in much larger quantities than they usually do. When the upward air currents lessen, or so much water accumulates that the air can not support it, there occurs the deluge of rain that we call a cloudburst.

New York Looked Up To As Center Of Banking World

New York City Now Has Largest Bank In World In Capital, Funds And Deposits

MAY SOON HAVE SECOND LARGEST

By W. S. COUSINS
International News Service Financial Editor

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 7.—"Just as this country has come to dominate the world banking picture, New York has grown to be the largest world banking center," said Harry J. Haas, prominent Philadelphia banker, and president of the American Bankers Association, to International News Service today.

Haas was discussing the question of world financial leadership as suggested by the address of Dr. E. W. Kemmerer in New York on Thursday.

"New York now has the largest bank in the world, both by capital funds and deposits," said Haas. "It shall soon also have the second largest bank in the world.

Increased Success

"The World War accentuated our financial rise, and perhaps before we were fully trained to its responsibility.

"With increased success comes increased responsibilities. We have had the success and we are now on our way to the full realization of its responsibility. While not apologizing for our shortcomings, we must understand that since our rise to the world's financial eminence we have had a troubled world, the like of which for its volume involved no past generations have ever experienced.

"Perhaps when the world shall have assumed a more stable position our confidence shall have increased proportionately and one successful world venture after another shall be accomplished until experience has shown that our efforts have proven safe and sound.

"Then we shall take our proper place in the sun.

"Sure our people are better prepared financially and intellectually to cope with even greater problems than they have in the past."

Gloria Swanson Reveals Farmer, Husband No. Four

Actress Has Been Wedded To Irish Sportsman, Michael Farmer, Three Months

WERE MARRIED IN NEW YORK STATE

(International News Service)

ELMSFORD, N. Y., Nov. 7.—Gloria Swanson, film star whose beauty and romantic acting thrilled millions, kept a happy secret from her public for more than two months.

One man was not so reticent, to today her sudden marriage on August 16 to Michael Farmer, wealthy Irish sportsman, was known far and wide.

Mayor John E. Murray admitted he officiated at the couple's wedding, which took place in the summer home of Dudley Field Malone, lawyer.

Because Miss Swanson's California divorce decree from her third husband, the Marquis De La Falaise De La Coudraye, will not become final until next Monday, she requested the few persons witnessing the ceremony to keep it unrevealed.

Miss Swanson's first husband was Wallace Beery, motion picture actor, who obtained a divorce on the ground for desertion. Her second was Herbert Somborn, film executive of Chicago and California, who is the father of her only child, Gloria, now 10. He also obtained a divorce, asserting her career interfered with their domestic life.

Miss Swanson has an adopted son Buddy, 8.

Avalon In "Fix"

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 7. — The borough of Avalon is, in the words of Charles Newell, its president of council, "in a fix."

The borough bought a new fire-truck for $10,250. Then it found that the doors of the engine house were too small to permit speedy entrance and exit in time of emergency.

At its meeing council last night was informed that for $3,500 it can put larger doors on the engine house. Then, there is the matter of widening one of the borough streets before the truck may be used.

"Didn't they know what they were buying when they got that truck?" asked Newell of his colleagues. There was no answer.

Begin Laying Plans For Liquidation Of Closed Bank Assets

Dr. William D. Gordon, State Banking Secretary Approves Of Incorporators

(International News Service)

PITTSFURGH, Nov. 7.—Approved by Dr. William D. Gordon, state secretary of banking, as incorporators and directors of the proposed second district realization corporation, twelve banking and business lead here today began laying plans for hastening liquidation of assets of closed Pittsburgh and western Pennsylvania banks.

Approval of the dozen leaders as heads of the corporation came shortly after Dr. Gordon named Charles L. McCune as a "private banker" to disburse cash on hand in the closed banks to depositors during the next month.

Wants Report.

The state bank head also disclosed he has asked state banks to make a complete report of private dealings by public officials who may be in a position to influence deposit of public funds. The report, Dr. Gordon said, was requested primarily as a basis for legislation designed to prevent tieing up of public funds in closed banks but he added that any evidence of fraud disclosed by the report would be followed up and vigorous prosecution would ensue if official fraud is found.

Incorporation papers for the realization coroporation were at Harrisburg today and indications were a charter would be received next week and tha the work of liquidating assets of closed banks would get under way immediately after granting of the charter.

Reserves Win By Big Score

Defeat George Washington Junior High By Score Of 48-0

GAME IS PLAYED ON ELLWOOD GRID

ELLWOOD CITY, Nov. 6.—Ending their season in a blaze of glory the Ellwood Reserves swamped a fine George Washington Junior high team of New Castle Friday afternoon by a 48-0 count before a fair crowd at Lincoln field.

The local boys seemed to be an entirely different team when they took the field against the visitors. Immediately after the kickoff they had started a straight drive for the goal they gave them three first downs enroute. Strouse took the ball over from the three yard stripe and Kamperman was sent in to run it over for the extra point.

Washington was forced to kick on the fourth down after the kickoff which culminated in another march to the goal for the Reserves with Kamperman finally taking it over from the six yard line. He again bucked the line for the extra point. This score had been made early in the second quarter.

Red Rocco substitute tackle recovered a fumble immediately upon his entrance into the affray following the kickoff. In four plays the ball was over for another marker when Bunny weaved his way through for 15 yards. The march was made from George Washington's 30 yard line. Strouse bucked the line for the extra point. Ellwood nearly scored again before the half was over but Segedi, the reserves quarterback juggled a nice pass after running 15 yards with it. George Washington recovered and punted on the second down. Ellwood had time for two plays when the half ended, with the score being 21-0 for Ellwood.

At the start of the third quarter, the reserves were penalized 15 yards for not observing the substitution rule. Due to a misunderstanding Coach Ernest Hensley had made substitutions at will. It was George Washington's ball on the Reserves 25 yard line. On the third down Offutt had recovered a fumble for Ellwood on their own 18 yard line. It resulted in another march for the goal with Strouse taking it over from the 15 yard stripe on a weak side play. He bucked the line for the extra point.

Strouse received Miles kickoff and staged a run of 58 yards to George Washington's 16 yard line. In two plays Segedi had brought the ball to the one yard line as the period closed, but he went over for another score when the goals were changed. McCloskey ran it over for the extra point.

After the kickoff George Washington resorted to the air in an effort to score. They were finally forced to punt. McCloskey advanced the ball 10 yards from the 45 yard marker. The backs worked the line again for another score. McCloskey squirmed through from the 13 yard line. Persons failed to make the point in his charge at the line. Score, Ellwood Reserves 41, George Washington 0.

The time to play was short and the visitors made another desperate effort to break into the scoring column via the air and were nearly successful when Miles threw a pass to Rodgers which netted 40 yards. Strouse had to make a flying tackle to stop him. On the next play Miles threw another pass but Segedi snatched it out of the air and sprinted 60 yards, from his own 40 for a touchdown. The game ended when he had bucked the line for the extra point. Final score, Ellwood 48, George Washington 0.

The Reserves same lineup which had started against Ben Franklin last Saturday morning, played brilliantly yesterday. Their blocking, tackling, and clipping was good and the interference had worked to perfection. Ellwood used the Pitt system of play. Their strong offensive power proved to be a surprise. The Reserves forward wall was impregnable, the visitors only scoring one first down, which was the long pass in the dying moments of the game. Strouse was probably the outstanding player on the field, but due credit must be given to his backfield mates who also made fine gains and ran the interference. Segedi, McCloskey, Bunny, Kamperman, and Strouse had all scored. Viniski, Glover, and Offutt were the best performers in the line. For the visitors Rogers, Miles, Anderson, Davis, and Evenski were outstanding.

The lineup which faced George Washington at New Castle was somewhat different. Since that time, Luxenberg, Navolio, and Butler were promoted to the varsity and therefore were ineligible to play. Strouse was transferred from tackle to a half back berth and Ronald Glover from half back to center. George Hemmerly, center was out with an injury. The remainder of the team was the same as in the former contest

The summary:

Ellwood 48.		G. Washington 0.
Viniski	L.E.	M. Perrett

The city jail was filled to more than capacity, there being some 30 men given lodging there and in addition, the Salvation Army headquarters beds were also filled with transients sent there by the police. It was the largest number cared for in some time.

CLASS B SCHOOLS IN CLOSE BATTLE

UNION HIGH TEAM WINS FROM SHENANGO, 14-6

Augustyn And Jaworski Cross Shenango Line In Last Half For Touchdowns

Brown Tallies From 20 Yard Mark For Shenango's Score 2,000 See Game

Playing under a cool November wind which had a crowd of 2,000 chilly, the Union high eleven scored a 14-6 victory over Shenango high school's strong football machine at the Union high field Friday afternoon. After the two teams battled to even terms for two periods the Union gridders flashed a fast attack to score twice during the last two quarters to win.

Score in Third

In the third quarter Shenango moved the ball to their own 30-yard line, where the East New Castle team decided to toss a pass on the third down in the hope of scoring a first down. Monico for Union grabbed the pass and raced to the one-yard line, where he was tackled. On the next play Jaworski carried it over for the first touchdown. Jaworski hit the line for the extra point.

Early in the fourth quarter the blue and white team from Scotland Lane crossed their opponents' line again. Union high took the ball in midfield and moved it to the 27-yard line through a series of line plunges. A double pass, Augustyn to Jaworski, brought the ball to the seven-yard line, where Louis Augustyn plunged his way through the line for the second touchdown. Monico smashed the line for the Union 14th and final point.

Shortly after the Union team scored the Shenango boys, who never gave up, started a march down the field The work of Arnold and Brown found the ball resting on the 24-yard mark. Brown, Shenango's fullback, took the ball on the next play and broke his way through the line for Shenango's touchdown. Brown's try for the extra point through the line failed. The final score was 14-6 with Union the victor.

During the first two periods the Shenango team seemed to outplay Union. On two occasions the Coach Pop Johnston team had the ball in scoring distance, only to lose it on downs. In the first quarter the East New Castle lads played heady ball, and through the effective line bucking of Arnold and Brown had the ball on the eight-yard mark, where a 15-yard penalty proved disastrous. The penalty was for holding.

Shenango might have scored had this penalty not resulted, as the Shenango boys were going through the Union line. After the penalty Shenango attempted a pass, which was intercepted by Jaworski. The first quarter ended 0-0. Late in the second period the Shenango boys started another march down the field. The ball was on the 20-yard mark when Brown hurled a pass to Seetch, who caught the ball on the six-yard mark. The officials measured for the first down and Shenango missed a first down by a fraction of a foot. After several plays the half ended.

Fast Game

During the final half the Union boys outplayed the Shenangoans. The game from start to finish was fast and thirilled the 2,000 or more frenzied fans who dared the weather to watch the class B high school contenders battle. Union must beat Bessemer to win the class B high school title. A victory for Bessemer will give Union, Bessemer and Shenango a deadlock for first place.

For Union the playing of Monico, Augustyn and Jaworski featured in the backfield. Sniezek and Mateja played well on the line. For Shenango Arnold, Brown and Seetch were outstanding in the backfield, with Shaffer and Polenick the best on the line.

Pitt And Tech Battling Today

Western Pennsylvania Grid Fans Watch With Interest Annual Classic

PITT PANTHERS ARE FAVORITES

By VIC JACOBS
International News Service Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 7.—With all the ballyhoo and noise which annually accompanies the traditional Pitt-Carnegie football battle, Pittsburgh today trundled itself off to the concrete saucer where the Panthers were favored before hand to trample the hard-pressed Carnegie Tech Tartan.

But there is nothing that Carnegie Tech would like to do so much as to give the dope bucket a good kick and upset the Pitt Panthers. In addition to its other ills, Carnegie was struck a last minute blow by scholastic requirements which pared down the squad to 23 men including those who are not on the crippled list.

Lib Lewis, sensational Sophomore end, is out with the broken leg suffered in the Notre Dame tussle, Terry O'Toole, the dashing fullback is also in the hospital with illness, and Clyde Heinzer, the Butler boy who was a star-guard, is also incapacitated.

Judge "Wally" Steffan will probably start the veterans Stewart and Ostrosky at ends; Fletcher and Forsman at tackles; Sample and Kebe at guards; Duncanis at center; Deuger at quarterback; Armentrout and Kavel at halfbacks, and Puncey at fullback.

Full Strength.

To combat this, Pitt has practically its full strength coupled with an almost endless line of reserves. Hart Morris will be out at guard because of a broken hand sustained in the Notre Dame tussle and Johnny Luch, the ponderous fullback, will take a rest because of an aggravated leg injury. Tar Onder, a Sophomore of no mean ability, will plug the gap for Morris and Jimmy Clark will batter away for Luch. In addition, there will be the rest of the usual first team.

The greatest asset Carnegie has and the one on which are based all her hopes to win is the determination and fight, which many times before has carried the underdog Tartans through seeming impossibilities to victory.

Racketeering Ideas In Football Waning

Colleges Start To Lower Prices For Big Games Due To Economic Situation

Big Stadiums Should be Just About Paid For By This Time

By FRANK G. MENKE
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Racketeering in football is one of the disappearing "arts."

A dozen major universities, and as many minor institutions, distressed over viewing so many spaces in their stadiums, already have cut grid iron admission prices for games to be staged during the balance of the season, and it is certainty that the cost of gazing upon the noble pigskin luggers in 1932 will be infinitely less than since the boom era began.

Prices Lowered

Colleges, which hoisted ticket prices about six years ago when they learned that folks had money, and that a refined gouge was possible, eventually lost all sense of proportion in their charges.

They taxed $3, $4 and $5 for games where the standard price was $1 or $2 in the earlier years. The only reason that could be located was that the collegiate minds reckoned the "suckers" would stand for the stiff tariff-and the "suckers" did.

The colleges gave the public no better football for $4 and $5 than they had received for $1 or $2. The cost of maintaining a football squad was no greater in 1930 than it was in 1920 in most instances and, in the isolated few, the cash needed for the support of the athletes was only a few thousand dollars higher. But the colleges, with stadiums seating from 40,000 to 80,000 boosted each seat price about $2 and thus added from $80,000 to $160,000 to their coffers.

The added injustice to the patrons came in the fact that all seats cost the same. The unfortunate individual who didn't happen to be a student or a "grad," and had to be content with a seat behind the goal lines, while the fellow with the "pull" was orbing action from midfield without any greater cost.

Radical Charge

The readjustment that is certain to take place before another season will see a radical reduction in prices. This perhaps will mean $1 and $2 "tops" for choice seats for ordinary games, and perhaps $3 for the very best "parking places" for the traditional or inter-sectional combats. And the bad seats will be scaled down in keeping with their worth, as is the custom at ball parks, boxing bouts, theatres, etc.

The "suckers" will get a "break" after 10 years of suffering at the hands of the hoity toity college officials, who almost have sneered at the efforts of the ordinary public to buy a fairly decent seat.

In the main bout Fitzgerald defeated Louie Severo of Meadville.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 7.—For the first time since 1914, the West Virginia Wesleyan Bobcats today were favored to turn the tide of battle against the West Virginia University gridders. Without Cliff Battles, the 190 pounds of thunder and lightning, the two teams would be about evenly matched. But Battles has demonstrated that in a pinch, he is a whole team by himself.

Westminster college football teams have won only 2 2-3 football games per season for the last six seasons, 1925 to 1931. The best seasons were in 1928 with four victories and in 1930 with four victories. In six seasons, Westminster won 16 games, lost 27 games, and tied three.

The largest score ever run up on a football opponent by Westminster college was the 76-0 count against Allegheny in 1904. Dr. William Cleland, New Castle, was captain of the 1904 team.

The largest score ever made against a Westminster college team was the 88-0 nightmare handed out by Pitt in 1926.

Westminster college football teams have scored 30 or more points in games with opponents on 21 different occasions since 1891. High scores of this nature have been run up on 11 different opponents. On 10 occasions, Titan teams have scored 40 or more points on an opponent, and on six occasions the United Presbyterians have scored 50 or more points in a single contest.

Five former Westminster College football players are now coaching college grid teams. They are: Tuss McLaughry, Brown; Al Wittmer, Princeton; John Lawther, Westminster; Bunny Marks, assistant coach at Carnegie Tech; and Miz Dart, assistant coach at Westminster.

In the last 10 years, Westminster College football teams have played 41 games at home and 48 contests away from home. In this time the Titans have played in four states and in 18 different towns and cities.

Irish Favored To Trim Penn

Harvard Picked To Top Dartmouth—Southern Cal. Liked Over Stanford

GEORGIA-NEW YORK GAME HEADLINES

By COPELAND C. BURG
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Like Autumn's gold and red leaves, a few of those undefeated football elevens are going to turn up their toes suddenly today and gently flutter to earth.

Generally the ranking elevens of the country should pull through and chief among the casualties of the day we like Pennsylvania. As we see it, Penn can't fail to lose.

Penn-Notre Dame

Poor old Penn! The Philadelphia gentlemen who made such a noble stand to de-emphasize football chartered a big special train to carry their grid warriors out to South Bend, Indiana, just to join the ranks of the sad defeated.

Penn thrilled even itself by pasting Wisconsin and then just managed to flip a strong Lafayette eleven but today they meet the real McCoy in Notre Dame. The Irish are too fast and smart. Penn's star, Carl Perina, is mighty good and is due to score but not win.

Harvard-Dartmouth

In the East unbeaten Harvard runs up against that surprising Dartmouth eleven at Cambridge but the crimson rates to keep its slate untarnished. The big green machine tied Yale, yet Harvard happens to be better than the blue and Coach Eddie Casey's outfit should continue the class of the East.

Right here in Papa Knickerbocker's backyard there is going to be a real dog fight when Georgia tangles with New York University. Everybody is picking Georgia, but just to be different we like those violets.

Actually Georgia is a better team but irritated by that Oregon defeat of last Saturday we look for Chick Meehan's gents to get real mad and turn in a nice little victory. And if they do win there will be some hope for the future of eastern football for today. Mind the Georgians stack up at the pinnacle of the game.

Beside the chill waters of Lake Michigan that big purple cloud from northwestern is going to come against Minnesota. The Evanston boys tied Notre Dame and doing that should mean they can wipe out the Gophers.

Southern California-Stamford

In the far west Howard Jones' Southern Californians are rated better than Pop Warner's Stanford eleven. Certainly the Jones team is one of the best in the country, but they have a habit of cracking up at the wrong time.

Cornell takes a big breath against Alfred at Ithaca and Columbia should not be greatly bothered by Virginia in a New York tilt.

Navy plays Ohio State at Columbus and is due to sink right to the bottom of the sea. Fordham gets the call over Detroit in another New York fray.

Pitt And Tech

Other apparent winners are Army over Louisiana State at West Point, Yale over St. John's at New Haven, Syracuse over Western Reserve at Syracuse, Lafayette over Rutgers at Easton, Pa., Pittsburgh over Carnegie Tech at Pittsburgh, Colgate over Penn State at State College and Princeton over Lehigh at Princeton. The Tigers have not won a game in weeks and maybe they won't until 1932.

Holy Cross practically rests against Duquesne. Alabama looks better than Florida and Nebraska rates above Iowa. California ought to take Washington. Michigan stands out over Indiana. Bucknell has a chance to turn back Georgetown.

SECOND STAGE

"And has your baby learned to talk yet?"

"Oh, my, yes. We're teaching him to keep quiet now."—Cornwall Advertiser.

Westminster Students Hold Grid Pep Meeting

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Nov. 7.—Westminster college students on Thursday night held a pep rally in the college gymnasium in preparation for the Thiel game to be played at Greenville today. The rally started at 7:30 so that students could attend the recital in the chapel at 8:15 given by Gordon Balch Nevin, organist.

The college band, under the student leadership of Herbert Smith, New Castle, and under the direction of Professor Alan B. Davis, played a series of introductory numbers while the students were gathering for the rally, and also played a number of pieces during the rally.

Hazen In Charge.

Louis Hazen, New Castle, varsity cheer leader, was chairman of the rally. He led the students in a number of cheers. The members of the varsity football squad were present with Coach John D. Lawther. Fred Blaha, New Castle student manager, was the first speaker on the program. Blaha pointed out the fact that the team played great ball against Waynesburg, that the boys are playing as a unit, and that a victory over Thiel is expected Saturday.

Captain Glen Rehfus, Sandusky, O., was the next speaker. He promised, that with the enthusiastic backing of the students, the team would play its best game of the year Saturday. Coach John Lawther then thanked the students for their enthusiasm and interest, gave a short sketch of each man on the team, and asked for continued enthusiasm Saturday at the game. William Crowell, former three-sport star and now coach at Mercer high, then told the gathering that Thiel has a fine offensive and defensive team and that only outstanding play on the part of the Titans will win over the fighting Lutherans.

Five hundred yellow cards bearing the legend "Beat Thiel" were scattered through dormitory rooms, in all classrooms, and around the college campus. The college band will make the trip to Greenville to pep up the large crowd of students who plan to follow the team.

Georgia's Test To Come Today

Great Football Team From South Goes To Metropolis For N. York University Battle

By FRANK G. MENKE
International News Service Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Some of the very best sleuths operating this season solemnly reported there'll be no marching through Georgia today by the legions who flaunt the standard of New York university.

"Georgia" one is told, "has everything. N. Y. U. merely has an ambition, the southern college is possessed of eight backfielders that ought to be on everybody's All-American and Stonewall Jackson was the fellow they used down there as the model for its line. In addition to all that, Georgia has the fighting spirit developed to the nth-nth degree, which is 200 per cent better than perfect, so what chance has the whipped N. Y. U. squad against the peerless and unbeaten combination from the land of cotton, etc.?"

Will Draw Crowd.

"Not much," is Gotham's own answer to that query. "Although Georgia is figured to win, and to bang N. Y. U. around in brutal fashion during the process, a large collection of citizens will sit in for the festival of pigskin chasing.

Apparently everybody in New York, who was born below the Mason & Dixon line, suddenly has decided that what the Georgians need most, or ought to have most of, is vocal support, and the heaviest sales of pasteboards have been made to customers with the drawl peculiar to the southland. And, as further proof of sectional loyalty, the folk from Dixie are roaming around demanding "who wants "N. Y. U.", without much success.

Lorenzo Given Sentence Today Re-Trial Denied

Monday Tony Lorenzo Slayer Of "Buffalo Al Ritchie" Faces Second Murder Trial

TWO MEN KILLED BY SAME BULLET

(International News Service)

SMETHPORT, Pa., Nov. 7.—Convicted of the slaying of "Buffalo Al" Ritchie, county detective, Tony Lorenzo today was denied new trial by Judge Robert Lewis here and was sentenced to serve from ten to twenty years in the state penitentiary.

Lorenzo was found guilty by a jury here two weeks ago and has been held in the county jail pending disposition of his motion for a new trial.

Monday, Lorenzo will face the second murder case against him when he is called to trial for the killing of Tony Maccio, fatally wounded by the bullets which killed Ritchie. Maccio, it is claimed, was sitting in Ritchie's car and the bullets which plowed through the detective's body struck Maccio.

Lorenzo's attorneys will plead double jeopardy when the second murder case is called, it was indicated today, and will ask that the charges be dismissed on the ground that Lorenzo's conviction will place him in jeopardy again if tried for the killing of Maccio.

WAYNESBURG-GENEVA.

(International News Service)

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Nov. 7.—Waynesburg faces Geneva college today with a team made up largely of reserve material. Illness and injuries have claimed a large portion of the Yellow Jacket regulars and it may take almost a miracle to allow Waynesburg to humble Geneva on its own field.

Record-Breaker

Slashing thirty-five hours from the previous record, Peggy Salaman, 19-year-old British society girl, landed in Cape Town, South Africa, completing a flight from England in 5½ days. Miss Salaman's co-pilot was Capt. Donald Store. The young girl became interested in flying only last year, when she tired of the social whirl of London. Note the South African riding habit which the aviatrix effects.

Tech Students Held In Jail

Pittsburgh Police Officer Injured When Hit By Missle—148 Students Rounded Up

FLOOD POLICE STATION CELLS

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 7.—Carnegie Tech's traditional celebration preceding the annual football battle with the University of Pittsburgh attained its climax early today with the injury of a plain-clothes officer, police raids on two student dormitories, arrest of 148 students and the flooding of the Oakland police station.

William G. Boyles, 39, the injured officer, was struck on the head by one of many missiles he said greeted him and Patrolman James Leonard and a squad of firemen when they entered the Tech campus to investigate a still alarm, signal for the morning's activities.

Riot Squad Called.

Boyles dispatched a call for the riot squad. In a few minutes Capt. John Barry and a squad of 15 picked patrolmen arrived on the scene. They were followed by a half-dozen emergency scout cars with their crews, several radio bandit chasers and two patrol wagons.

The small army of police raided two Tech dormitories and arrested every student whose appearance indicated that he might have been awake only a short time before.

Two hours later, when the last of the 148 students had been transferred to cells at the Oakland police station, one of the more enterprising prisoners organized a cheer practice. The musty walls of the police station soon resounded with the mighty cheers and songs of Tech.

Releases Refused.

While Capt. Barry and his officers held their hands to their heads, two students climbed to the top of the cell block and neatly broke off a water pipe. Police soon brought all the emergency patrol wagons to the Oakland Station and wallowing in four inches of water, transferred the shouting mob of students to the central police station where the walls are made of concrete and all water pipes concealed.

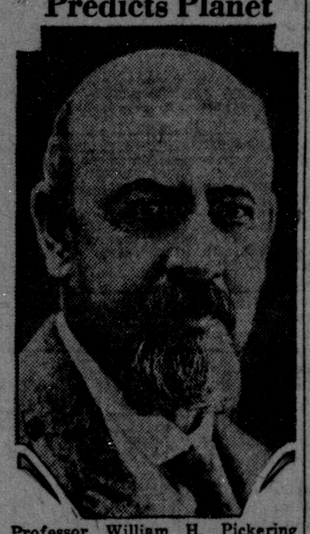

Dean of Men Tarbell soon appeared at the station and demanded the release of his students. The officer politely refused stating that 146 of them were booked on disorderly conduct charges and two others would be given the opportunity to prove that they were not the ones who heaved the missile which struck Patrolman Boyles.

To Wed Officer

Princess Ingrid of Sweden (above), whose engagement to Count Nils von Rosen, a Swedish cavalry officer, has been reported in London. The engagement has not yet received the sanction of King Gustav, her grandfather. While the youthful Princess told English friends of her affair, Swedish court circles have denied that she is engaged.

Predicts Planet

Professor William H. Pickering (above), internationally known astronomer at the private observatory at Mandeville, Jamaica, predicts that there is a new and giant planet lying far outside the present limits of the solar system. Prof. Pickering, one of the two astronomers to predict Planet X, discovered two years ago, declares this new heavenly body will be found to be the third largest in the sun's family.

"Mummy, daddy isn't so rich as we are, is he?"

Royal Wedding Barred By Bourbon 'Blood Curse'

Romance of Princess Beatrice of Spain Blighted by Hereditary Disease That Has Been the Scourge of Dynasty.

The grim spectre that has remorselessly stalked the dynasty of the royal House of Bourbon has again cast its shadow over the exiled family of Alfonso, former King of Spain. This time, the skeleton in the Bourbon closet has come forth to destroy the romance of Princess Beatrice and her sister, Christine. Engaged to marry young Prince Alvaro de Bourbon-Orleans, Beatrice, conforming to an old Spanish tradition, made her wedding gown with her own hands. But a medical examination, insisted upon by her father, disclosed that both she and her sister, Christine, were "carriers" of the dread malady haemophilia —a condition which renders the blood incapable of coagulation, sufferers being always under the risk of bleeding to death. This disease has long been the bane of the royal line of the Bourbons. Alfonso's eldest son, Prince of the Asturias, is a sufferer, as was his relative, the young Czarevitch of Russia, slain by revolutionists. The former King of Spain has forbidden the projected marriage out of consideration to the probable issue of the Princess. His decision automatically terminates the engagement of Christine, also, who was to have married Alonso, younger brother of her sister's fiance.

A Case of Brain and Brawn

Here are Victorio Campolo (left) and Primo Carnera (the other mountain), just after they signed in New York to exchange blows at Madison Square Garden, November 27. Together, they weigh 500 pounds, but if you've missed him thus far, take a squint at the little feller in the middle. He's Jimmy Johnston, who made the match, and will collect most of the profit. So what?

"Wise-Crackin', Will?"

When Secretary of War Patrick Hurley landed in his plane at Los Angeles none other than the Beverly Hills wit, Will Rogers, was on hand to greet him with a warm handclasp and probably a typical wisecrack or two. In fact, the former cowboy's face gives unmistakable signs of some classic Rogerism, while Secretary Hurley seems to be enjoying whatever his fellow Oklahoman is offering.

WHEN WINTER COMES

IS YOUR house packed to the eaves with tremendous stores of flour . . . meat . . . clothing . . . and other supplies to carry you through the long winter?

Not very likely!

But if not, won't you—like the butterfly that played all summer without a thought of the cold days to come—won't you be in danger of facing famine, months before spring comes round again?

Certainly not!

When wintry winds are blowing their coldest, and the storm is wailing like forgotten banshees on the roof-top, the chances are you may be eating juicy strawberries from Costa Rica and fresh asparagus from Florida. For the day of storing up supplies against the barrenness of winter has gone forever. It passed when America ceased to be a lot of scattered communities, and became a nation united by swift lines of transportation.

As you read the advertisements telling you just what the stores contain for you, fresh to your order, remember that here are the inexhaustible storerooms of today . . . storerooms that have banished forever the anxieties that went with the snows of yesteryear.

NEW YORK STOCKS

Industrial Stocks Are Pushed Upward

By W. S. COUSINS
International News Service Financial Editor

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—The Industrial stocks and Specialties pushed ahead brilliantly in the week-end market and reached the highest price levels in more than a month.

Once again the Grain markets set the pace, and when Wheat, Corn and Oats mounted to the highest prices of the season, stocks responded with an enthusiastic outburst of speculative and investment buying which carried prices 1 to 4 points higher.

United States Steel was a star performer in the popular industrials, its new advance to above 74 coinciding with the reports of an upturn in Steel operations at important industrial centers, Bethlehem Steel above 31 showed a gain of more than 2 points and a 9-point recovery from its recent low level.

While advances in General Motors, General Electric, Standard Oil of New Jersey and other favorites rarely exceeded a point or two, stocks in this class were turned over in numerous thousand-share blocks, reflecting heavy demand from important buying quarters. General Motors above 29 compares with its recent low of 22⅛. Dupont's strength and activity was due to reports of the perfection of important new chemical processes. The stock jumped 6⅛ points.

Both the Grain and the stock markets were unsettled in the early trading by the profit taking which flowed in good volume. Silver also fell off more than a cent an ounce, which was to be looked for after its recent strenuous advance.

Sinclair set the pace for the low-priced Oils and advanced about a point to 9⅛ on announcement of a new advance in the retail price of gasoline. The best prices of the year were recorded for Barnsdall, Shell Union, Texas Corporation and other active independents. Standard Oil of New Jersey and California joined the advance in a heavy turnover.

The shorts in Dupont, Auburn auto and other closely held specialties were given to the wall as stocks of this class were rushed up under the direction of the bulls. American Can, Sears Roebuck and American Tel & Tel, with Atchison and New York Central in the rails led a vigorous upturn near the close.

The industrial favorites absorbed a heavy load of week-end profit taking near the final bell. In a few cases the price peaks of the active short session were flattened out, but the market as a whole closed higher.

United States Steel receded more than a point from the top, finishing the session at 72⅝ for a net gain of 2⅜. Bethlehem Steel scored a gain of 2⅞ at its final price of 31⅞ and Dupont was up 4¼ at 67½. American Can up 2⅛ at 86; American Tel. and Tel. up 2⅜ at 29⅝; Allied Chemical up 3 at 95⅞; Auburn Auto up 1 at 136½.

Union Pacific, leading the activity in the rails, closed more than 3 points higher, at 109¼. New York Central was up 1⅜ at 52⅜; Baltimore and Ohio up 1¾ at 36½; Southern Pacific up 1⅝ at 51⅞.

The Dow Jones averages showed a gain of nearly 3 points for the industrials, 1¼ for the rails and a point for the utilities. Transactions on the big board totalled 2,000,000 shares, against 800,000 shares last Saturday.

Congress And Legislatures Of Ten States Convene This Winter

Legislation of vital interest to the nation's car owners will be to the forefront in Congress and the Legislature of ten states which convene this winter, according to Ralph W. Bolsinger, President of the New Castle Motor Club.

Mr. Bolsinger declared that the Legislatures of the states of Mississippi, Louisiana, Kentucky, Virginia, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and South Carolina will meet early in 1932.

"From the standpoint of safety on the streets and highways," said the A. A. A. club executive, "The principal legislative campaign will center around the Safety-Responsibility law now in effect in whole or in part in eighteen states and four Canadian Provinces. Of the nine states where the Legislatures convene this winter, the Safety-Responsibility law is in effect in three, and it is anticipated that it will be a live issue in the other six. The measure will also be revived in Congress in an effort to have it enacted for the District of Columbia.

"In addition, there will also be determined campaigns in the various states to halt the pyramiding of motor vehicle taxes and diversion of tax receipts to other than road-building purposes."

Mr. Bolsinger pointed out that with unemployment still a national problem, and road-building the purposes."

Mr. Bolsinger pointed out that with unemployment still a national problem, and road-building the brunt of the public works campaign, Congress may be expected to continue appropriations for Federal assistance and possibly make available an emergency fund similar to that authorized during the present year.

"In the state Legislatures," he continued, "there will also be legislation advances for drivers' license laws and numerous other measures of importance to every motorist."

Don't Be A Street Ostrich

Like the ostrich that hides its head in the sand and thinks it is safe many pedestrians cross heavily traveled thoroughfares with their heads buried in a newspaper, under umbrellas or coat collars. They apparently assume that drivers of approaching automobiles will see them and stop. They do not realize that the attention of the driver may also be diverted. The practice of blindly crossing the street is particularly noticeable in cold rainy weather. During such periods extra care is required on the part of every pedestrian and car owner.

You can help by not being a "Street Ostrich". The New Castle Motor Club gives the following simple rules of crossing the street.

1. Look to the left before leaving the curb and to the right upon reaching the center of the thoroughfare.

2. Cross only on the green light at controlled crossings with safety lines.

3. When caught in a traffic jam never dodge back and forth, but stand still and allow the automobile to pass.

Twenty-Five Years Ago

Have you ever decided that an automobile was a nuisance? Have you ever stopped because the car wouldn't go any farther? Did people laugh as you hopelessly raised the hood and looked intently at a buch of meaningless gadgets?

Twenty-five years ago everybody but a far-sighted few shared the nuisance belief in common. Every driver, at some time or other, stopped because the horseless carriage refused to be urged forward any longer. But the people who stood by while the hood was pried up didn't laugh.

And the embarrassed gentleman with the gauntlets and duster wished the blacksmith knew something about the eccentricities of the gas go-cart.

STORAGE PLACE IS GRADUALLY BEING FILLED

There Is Still Need Of Potatoes, Cabbage In Quantities

Storage place of the Mayor's Relief Committee and Salvation Army, which bears the significant sign, "Rainbow of Helpfulness" and is located at South Jefferson street and Market Way, is beginning to be filled with the supplies of apples, carrots, turnips, cabbage, beets that have been donated by farmers and others of the surrounding district. In fact there are hundreds of bushels of these articles, which have been racked up in the proper manner to preserve them.. through the efforts of J. K. McQuiddy, representative of the Building Trades Council and Mayor Relief Committee and Salvation Army Board, and his many volunteer workers.

The racks were made possible through donations of lumber by the Pennsylvania Railroad and are so constructed by Mr. McQuiddy and his workers as to give circulation through the stored fruit and vegetables.

One great need at the storage house is potatoes and cabbage. Donations of the same would be most acceptable, while gifts of money to be used in the purchase of potatoes, in particular, would be most acceptable.

Eckles Firm Drops Grove City Plans

Will Only Handle City's Own Post Office; Ruling Nulls Order

The W. G. Eckles company, local firm of architects, acceding to a request of the United States treasury department, has given up its preliminary work on plans for the new Grove City postoffice, which federal authorities instructed them to draw up some time ago. Work on the New Castle office plans, however, will be hurried along.

A ruling of the department provides that only one project shall be apportioned to an architect, preventing the Eckles office from handling both the New Castle and Mercer county jobs.

Holmes Crosby, Oil City architect, has been named by the government to proceed with the Grove City office specifications. The Eckles office had started the work.

The Grove City appropriation amounted to $120,000, $25,000 of which was expended for the building site. The building itself will cost $86,000 with an additional $9,000 for a contingent fund.

Fully One-Third Of Low Auto License Holders In 1931 Dropped

All But Three Of First Thirty-Three Tags Given To State Officials

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Nov. 7.—Assignment of 34 tags in the first block of 100, the "Blue Ribbon" list, was announced Friday by the Governor's office.

The list revealed that fully one third of those who held licenses within the first 100 for 1930 have been eliminated from the list.

With the exception of three tags all of the first thirty were assigned to state officials. The exceptions were Senator Clarence J. Buckman, Bucks, W. L. Mellon, and Mary Flinn Lawrence, both of Pittsburgh.

W. W. Atterbury, active foe of the Governor, lost No. 5 and 55. As a cabinet office No. 5 went to Sam. Lewis, secretary of highways, and 55 to Morris Gregg, one of the Pinchot stenographers.

Katherine Lindsay, a clerk in the Governor's office, got No. 52, formerly held by W. G. Costin, Pittsburgh.

Mellons Get Tags

Although not friendly with the Mellons, six assignments to that family, made in former years, were not disturbed. A. W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury got No. 48, the tag he has held for five years.

Those displaced in the first thirty numbers included Albert M. Greenfield, Philadelphia real estate operator, who had No. 13; Robert P. Hooper, Philadelphia, former president of the Pennsylvania Motor Federation who had No. 14, and W. Freeland Kendrick, former mayor of Philadelphia, who lost 27.

Jacob Schwartz, Philadelphia, publicity director during the previous Pinchot administration replaced S. E. Sproul, Chester, as the holder of No. 41.

No. 62 Not Assigned

By accident or design No. 44, now held by former public service commissioner James S. Benn, Philadelphia, went to Harold Evans, Philadelphia. Evans was chief of counsel for the house utilities investigating committee and as such directed the inquiry into Benn's service on the commission. Evans, too, is a former member of the commission and could have been named to one of the two places which the governor has filled.

The list showed that tag No. 62, formerly held by Joseph G. Armstrong, Allegheny county commission, has not yet been assigned.

Jewish Orator At Temple Israel

Rabbi Henry E. Kagan Of B'Nai B'rith Hillel Foundation Speaks To Congregation

RABBI H. E. KAGAN

The congregation of Temple Israel was thrilled Friday evening as they listened to a masterpiece of oratory which issued from the lips of Rabbi Henry E. Kagan, director of the Millel Foundation at West Virginia University.

The rabbi is a young man of extraordinary ability and outstanding in the work of the Foundation and he outlined the usefulness of the foundation and the benefits it affords the Jewish students at the University.

In the course of his address he told of the meaning of the words, Jew, Israelite and Hebrew, saying that Jew is the larger group of these people, whereas, Israelite represents a smaller group and means "fighting for God" and Hebrew, coming from the word "Ever", beyond the Jordan, is a still smaller group, the chosen of the chosen, who are the minority, always fighting for the higher ideals of the race.

Rabbi Kagan also eulogized the women of the race, telling of the wonderful work they have carried on and he concluded his eulogy to them with a most beautiful, expressive poem.

Concluding the evening's address the group adjourned to the vestry room of the Temple, where Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Shenkan were hosts to the group at a delightful reception.

Rabbi Kagan was a classmate of Rabbi J. A. Grossfield, pastor at Temple Israel.

Franklin Civics Group Finds Model Election Is Thrilling Procedure

Representative of the splendid training which the children of the local public schools are receiving in citizenship, was the project carried out this week in the civics classes of Miss Annetta Dodds, Benjamin Franklin junior high school teacher. Instead of studying the process of an election fom a purely theoretical standpoint, the classes of Miss Dodds actually held an election in their rooms in the same manner in which a public election is conducted.

Previous to election day one person in each class was appointed to act as assessor. Then each member of the different classes was officially registered by him. Except for age, the qualifications were the same for any regular election.

Over-Night Change

The night before the election, a great transformation took place in Room 201, Miss Dodds' civics room. What had previously been a most respectable classroom blossomed suddenly into full-fledged voting polls. Secret voting booths were erected, notices of various kinds were posted conspicuously and sample ballots were displayed. Guard rails, ballot box and other typical election paraphernalia were installed.

Election morning found a regular election board in charge of each precinct. (Each civics class of Miss Dodds formed a precinct.) The election board included a judge, two inspectors and two clerks. Besides the official board each precinct had several watchers.

As each member took his place and explanation was given as to how he received this office as well as to his exact official duties. The proper use of the ballot in voting was explained after the voting began.

Count Votes Cast

After the official closing of the polls the election board began counting the votes. It's needless to say that the remainder of the class sat in on the counting which was supervised by the board. Sometimes it was count and recount but eventually the results were recorded and count made ready to file with the county commissioners. When the counting was over the judge heaved a sigh of relief in finding that the corners had all been properly torn off the ballots.

It was interesting to note that the school precincts elected the identical officers which were chosen by the city on the same day.

Cooperating with the school in the election were the Lawrence county commissioners, who supplied sample ballots for the voting; the janitors who assisted in erecting the special booths; a Beaver Falls attorney who provided a complete election outfit of voting lists, return sheets, instruction sheets, pencils, pens, string, and everything used in a real election. Another veteran member of local election board assisted in the counting.

The project was practical and beneficial in that the pupils learned by experience the correct ways for voting. The demonstration also conveyed to the pupils an accurate knowledge of the duties of the officers at the polls.

Unable To Find Reason Back Of Phoenix Murders

Arizona Officials Stumped In Finding Motive For Killing By Mrs. Ruth Judd

WOMAN SLAYER IN CRITICAL SHAPE

By W. M. BISHOP
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 7.—Arizona authorities were no nearer solving the mysterious love murders of Agnes Ann Leroi and Hedwig Samuelson Friday than they were when Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd surrendered to her husband and attorneys in Los Angeles 10 days ago.

This was frankly admitted by Sheriff J. R. McFadden and County Attorney Lloyd J. Andrews who have tried for a week to definitely establish a clue to the identity of the persons or person who is thought to have aided the Blonde Velvet Tigress pack the bodies of her victims in trunks and ship them to Los Angeles.

Mrs. Judd's first story, that she killed the two women for whom she had admitted warm affection, in self defense, has remained unshaken in the face of grillings in her solitary cell in the Maricopa County jail, and under the pressure and influence of her own attorneys.

Condition Critical

While the authorities are attempting to establish a "definite end" motive for the crime, on every hand here today there is expressed in official as well as medical circles a grave concern over Mrs. Judd's physical condition. It is doubted in many medical quarters that she will live to face the demand of county attorney Andrews that she pay for her flonious crime against society with her life on the gallows.

Mrs. Judd's inactive tubercular condition has become extremely active during the last ten days. She has lost more than fifteen pounds in weight since she surrendered to the California authorities October 22, in a Los Angeles mortuary.

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 7.—The burlesque presentation of "Othello" by the women of South Church moved along at a fast pace.

The curtain came down, Rev. Warren S. Archibald stepped out on the stage and quietly led a prayer. Miss McReynolds was dead.

Police Sergeant Locked In Jail With Prisoners

All was quiet at police station last night, when Lieutenant Hillers on hearing a voice calling "That must be Steiner. I'll bet he has locked himself in the jail with that bunch out there."

Investigation was made and sure enough, Sergeant Steiner was locked in the jail. When released, he stated that he had gone there to look after a prisoner, who was drunk and appeared to need special attention and had left the door into the jail wide open.

While he was busily engaged in looking after the prisoner in question, one of the over night lodgers, also kept in the jail lobby, feeling a little chilly by reason of the door being open, closed it.

The door can only be locked or unlocked from the outside and the result was that Sergeant Steiner was as much of a prisoner as the others. He was speedily released.

Some News, Some Views, But Mostly Just Observations Of Interesting Things Around New Castle

The Red Menace is with us today, but in this case its a Red Menace that nobody tries to escape. It's Poppy Day and in spite of the snow and the chill, and the other distractions, there's a lot of lasses on the streets today selling poppies.

There may be some folks who turn them down just out of pure cussedness. There are people like that in this country. There are some who have to refuse to buy for very good reasons, but fortunately the ones who have it and won't kick in are few.

Around the theatres this morning it looked like a bargain sale of ten dollar bills. It was the Kids Day and they made the most of it. If all the canned goods presented at the door were laid end to end, you'd have to use a spy glass to see the two extremities.

It was a case of where everybody did his bit to put it over. The theatres were donated, so were the pictures, so were the trucks and the labor, and of course a lot of mothers put out some of their 1931 packed friut or vegetables.

George Wyman, who has been directing traffic in New Castle almost since John Carlysle Stewart came out this way never played any football but try and find a more enthusiastic fan. His grandson plays center on the unbeaten Union High Township High School football team, and according to George, the team this year ranks with Notre Dame, Northwestern and the rest of the good ones.

Friday they defeated Shenango Township, but only after a real scrap. Shenango has a real aggregation this year but somebody had to lose. After wiping off the stains of battle the Shenango lads set about getting ready for next year and already are threatening what will happen.

They are William Morgan, 20, R. D. 4, New Castle, who received an injured hip and bruises on his legs, and Victor Conrad, 19, 609 East Long avenue, the driver, who received a sprained arm and also a hip injury.

The youths were enroute to Youngstown. Five miles from the Ohio city they were sideswiped off the road, they report, by a car believed to carry Ohio license 10596, coming in the opposite direction.
